KINSMAN, Ill., Feb. 26.—Bandits believed en route to Chicago to burn their way into the 2800 pound safe of the State Bank of Kinsman will have $15,000 in loot if they are successful, President P. R. Cosgrove of the bank told International News Service today.

CHICAGO, Feb. 26.—All roads between Kinsman, Ill., and Chicago were watched today for a fugitive safe believed to contain $15,000 in cash with which five cracksmen fled early today. Unable to break into the safe or fearful of giving the alarm, they loaded the 2800 pound strong box of the State Bank of Kinsman on a motor truck and headed toward Chicago.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 26.—Wire tapping by prohibition agents to obtain evidence against bootleggers will not be sanctioned in California. Prohibition Director Samuel F. Rutter said today that agents tapping wires were guilty under the state law of criminal offense. "Under the state law, Dolley has no right to tap wires to get evidence against bootleggers," said Rutter when asked if he considered Harold H. Dolley, his chief aide, to be within the law when he listened in on telephone wires while attempting to trap smugglers and prohibition law violators. Rutter said his department was investigating a statement made by Dolley that Dolley had brought two agents here to tap wires from Los Angeles, where the system had proved effective.

These are the same rates applied by the House to inheritances. The vote on the gift tax provision was 191 to 65.

Warning Is Issued By Coolidge

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—President Coolidge today issued a warning against enactment of numerous bills which have flooded congress during the last few months, all of them contemplating additional expenditures of federal funds. The legislative situation has reached such a stage, the president believes, that should these bills become laws they would serve to nullify the budget, undermine the financial establishment and seriously hinder the proposed reduction in taxes. The bonus, pension bill and other measures providing general increases in almost every direction, were specifically cited.

An effort is to be made, he announced, by Mr. Holland to reopen the original Hatfield case, which was dismissed when the campground was purchased by Mr. Holland.

BATTLE TO KEEP FIRES SEPARATE

Outbreaks In Santa Barbara Forest May Merge As Flames Spread

SANTA BARBARA, Feb. 26.—With a high wind carrying sparks from two fires in the Santa Barbara national forest fire fighters at the scenes of the fires called for additional aid today to keep the flames, which are within eleven miles of each other, from merging into one. The fear was expressed that little could be done to check the flames which have been raging since yesterday afternoon.

Careless picnickers who left camp fires are believed to have started the conflagrations. One fire is in Cold Springs canyon, in which many valuable resort homes.

BATTLES WITH BURGLARS

FIRES TWICE AT FLEEING FORMS IN DARKNESS

Householder Hit on Head as He Attempts to Prevent Thieves' Entrance

Two burglars, attempting to rob the residence of Jack Buchanan, Canada boulevard and Hillside drive, at 10:30 o'clock last night, were routed by him after a fight in which he fired two shots at the intruders and was himself knocked down in the melee.

Awakened by the grating noise of a key in the lock of the front door, Buchanan procured his revolver and when the robbers came into view, fired at one who was standing near the door. The man took to his heels with Mr. Buchanan in close pursuit.

Shoots At Assailant

As he dashed through the door, a confederate of the fleeing man, standing out of sight on the porch near the door, struck him on the head, felling him. He still had his revolver, however, and fired almost point-blank at his assailant.

The burglar, seeing that Buchanan was armed, leaped from the porch, and took after his companion, who by this time had made his getaway. It was too dark to make out the forms of the fleeing men, and being somewhat dazed by the blow he had received, Mr. Buchanan did not have an opportunity to fire again at the intruders.

Although of the opinion that the first man made a clean getaway, Mr. Buchanan is of the opinion that he hit the second man during the struggle on the porch. Detective Sergeant Blake and Officer Moffit, who answered the call to police headquarters for assistance, searched the neighborhood thoroughly but could find no bloodstains on the porch.

The theory of the officers is that the men had a car stationed nearby on Canada boulevard and that they drove either to Montrose or Glendale.

ISLAND AUDITOR HOLDS UP MONEY

Refuses to Approve Vouchers On Independence Fund On Legal Point

MANILA, Feb. 26.—Consternation prevailed today in Filipino political circles as a result of the refusal of Insular Auditor Ben F. Wright to approve vouchers on the independence fund on the ground that the half million dollar annual self-perpetuating appropriations is unconstitutional. If the courts sustain Wright, the entire independence commission may be abolished unless financed from private contributions.

The independence commission, which is composed of all members of the legislature, had just virtually agreed to send a special independence mission composed of eighteen members to the United States next month but the ruling may interfere with these plans.

MESSAGES IN CODE CAUSE SENATORIAL INQUIRY TO BROADEN

Wires From Western Union Files Under Examination Behind Closed Doors

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—Delving deeper into the morass of the great oil scandal, members of the Senate investigating committee developed today that there was an almost constant stream of telegrams passing between Washington and Palm Beach last December when the most sensational aspects of the scandal were coming to light.

E. B. McLean, wealthy Washington publisher, and Albert B. Fall, ex-secretary of the interior, were kept constantly advised of what was happening in Washington, the committee found upon examination of the files of Western Union telegrams, secured from the local office under protest.

In Secret Session

The telegrams disclosed that "political wires" were being pulled in the investigation.

The committee examined the Western Union files behind closed doors this morning for nearly two hours and did not quite finish.

A number of the messages relating to the oil scandal were found to be in code. McLean probably will be requested to identify and translate these messages.

Though members of the committee hesitated to tell the contents of the messages, one senator declared "some extremely interesting things were found."

Sees 'Beautiful Story'

"I am certain," he added, "that when the telegrams are made public you will have a beautiful story. It may be found, too, that some of the telegrams will wreck some additional political futures."

It was also developed that at about the time Senator Walsh was sent to Palm Beach to question McLean about the $100,000 loan to ex-Secretary of Interior Fall, McLean installed a leased wire from his home to his two papers. After that time the committee found only a few telegrams to or from McLean.

The committee found no damaging telegrams that passed between Washington and Palm Beach for Fall, it was declared. Any telegrams to him were of a business nature or related to private affairs.

Difference of Opinion

Committee members themselves differed greatly as to whether the telegrams were "sensational." Senator Adams, Democrat of Colorado, replying to a question whether "sensational evidence" was unearthed, said:

"There was a great difference of opinion in the committee as to whether the messages were sensational. There were one or two queer things."

All members of the committee were agreed that no definite proof

Noble, principal of the school, who has returned after an absence of a term, and a talk on Boy Scouts by Harvey R. Cheesman, executive of Boy Scouts of Verdugo hills.

The in-coming mothers of new students at Wilson school were also special guests, and there was a splendid attendance of members and officers of the organization.

The president, Mrs. H. A. Thim, presided at the business meeting and the program was arranged by Mrs. E. B. Wyman, program chairman.

The Boy Scout program was outlined by Mr. Cheesman, who pointed out the many advantages to the boy and to the community that comes with the program. A call to the fathers and mothers of Glendale is going out this week to support the Boy Scout organization in Glendale and increase the membership 100 per cent. Friday night the boys of Glendale will be entertained with their fathers for the purpose of "selling" Scouting to them.

A practical demonstration of Boy Scout work was put on by a group of Scouts, showing the work of passing badges, first-aid in case of accidents and how to treat a drowning person. The boys' work was first class and received enthusiastic applause from the appreciative audience.

Miss Noble spoke a few words of greeting to the mothers, expressing her pleasure in returning to her office and her appreciation of the warm welcome from the Parent-Teachers' association.

Refreshments were served during the social hour by a committee of which Mrs. J. P. King is chairman.

The Parliamentary law drill, which had been announced to take place, under the direction of Mrs. H. C. Vandewater, was postponed until a future date.

Gas Ferryboat to Ply Connecticut River

CHESTER, Conn., Feb. 26.—Gasoline still will be the motive power when motor vehicles cross the Connecticut river here to penetrate the wilderness of Eastern Connecticut. The old steam ferryboat that has been crossing the mile-wide stretch of river for generations will be supplanted April 1 by a Lake Champlain type ferry made up of a gasoline launch that propels a pair of barges. When only humans are to be ferried over the river the launch can be detached for the voyage.

Odd Plan to Kill Boll Weevil Advanced

NEW ORLEANS, La., Feb. 26.—Claiming that after years of study he has discovered a new method of destroying the boll weevil, E. St. Amant, a New Orleans florist, has invited government agents, studying this enemy of the southern cotton farmer, to make an inspection of his method.

The florist insists that his method works like a charm. The idea is very simple, he said, and consists of placing a strong light in the center of the field at night to attract the weevils' natural impulse to fly toward light. Around this light he would place a contrivance of his own invention, from which issues a strong fire which kills the weevil instantly.

WARNS AUTOISTS OF FIRE MENACE

Burning Cigar and Cigaret Stumps Are Cause of Five Outbreaks

The continued dry weather has greatly increased the fire hazard in adjacent hills, and Fire Chief A. H. Lankford this morning asked that a warning be given to motorists to exercise unusual care in the prevention of disastrous conflagrations such as visited the San Rafael hills last August.

The local fire department yesterday answered five calls from Verdugo road, between Glendale avenue and Montrose, where lighted cigarettes or cigars, thrown away by persons riding in cars, had started incipient blazes, which, if not controlled in time, would spread to large proportions.

The grass and brush is so dry that it ignites much easier than is ordinarily the case, and if alarms continue to be turned in as frequently as they have the past week, it is probable that a fire patrol will have to be established on Verdugo road.

PACIFIC COAST'S DEFENSES POOR!

Report Shows Obsolete Guns, Insufficient Men and Vulnerable Forts

By COPELAND C. BURG
For International News Service

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 26.—Pacific coast defenses are utterly lacking in protection.

San Francisco, Seattle and Tacoma, as well as the United States navy yards at Bremerton, Wash., are open prey for invading sea forces, and Portland, Ore., is only slightly protected.

These are conclusions officially reported by Brigadier-General Henry D. Todd, Jr., commanding the Ninth Coast Artillery District, which comprises all coast defenses on the Pacific, after a tour of inspection of the fortifications guarding Puget Sound and the mouth of the Columbia river.

Out-of-date guns, designed in 1896, are used in the northwest and in the coast defenses of San Francisco, according to General Todd, who points out in an official report to the War Department at Washington that these coast defenses "would be utterly unable to protect units of the American battle fleet while leaving harbor and before they would take up battle formation."

Guns Obsolete

The Pacific coast defense guns were installed at a time when the best foreign battleships carried but four twelve-inch guns and twelve six-inch guns. The coast defense guns are unable to reach objects beyond 17,000 yards.

Today, General Todd states officially, each ship of the British "Royal Sovereign" class carries eight fifteen-inch guns and fourteen six-inch guns, the fifteen-inch guns being able to outrange our twelve-inch guns by at least 100,000 yards. Japanese "Nagato" class ships carry eight sixteen-inch guns, which greatly outrange American twelve-inch weapons.

According to General Todd, not only is equipment of obsolete type, but garrisons are so depleted along the coast that a surprise attack could not be successfully repulsed.

The cities of Seattle and Tacoma, in Washington, and Portland, Oregon, as well as the navy yards at Bremerton, Washington, are now almost completely unprotected, and in the event of attack by such a nation as Great Britain or Japan, boasting ships with powerful guns, they could easily be blown off the map, General Todd's report shows.

Need Protection

"If an enemy determined to make a base near the mouth of the Columbia river he could outrange and overpower the batteries there just as he could at Puget Sound. When it is considered that one of the missions of the Puget Sound forts is to protect the Bremerton Navy Yard and the large cities of Seattle and Tacoma, with their docks, railway terminals, banks, manufacturing concerns, etc., $1,000,000 would be a very small amount to pay, constituting, as it would, a premium for life insurance for that entire locality. To construct carriages for the sixteen-inch guns (needed in Puget Sound) and mount them in con- $1,000,000 which is less than crete emplacements near Fort Worden would not cost more than one-fortieth the cost of one batlumbia river forts should be completely manned, he states.

The war strength authorized by the war department for the Puget Sound forts is 3,235 officers and men and 1,341 for the Columbia garrisons.

"In case of sudden attack these forts could not put up much resistance until the units of the reserves had been enlisted, equipped and transferred to these forts," the Todd report states.

General Todd believes that im-

Coroner Advises Prospects How to Live Until 100

GALESBURG, Ill., Feb. 26.—How to live one hundred years, and like it, was explained by Dr. George S. Bower, prominent Illinois physician and coroner of Knox county, in an interview here. Dr. Bower classified the popular "joy-killing" prescriptions for longevity as falsities and advocated the daily use of common sense as a sure specific for a long life and a merry one.

A few Bowerisms follow:

"If you want to live a long time, don't worry. Be like the savages of Africa or Asia—take life as it comes, serenely. Savages never have high blood-pressure.

"Eat anything you feel like eating and as much as you want. Instead of wearing out your teeth with brushes, use your teeth eating hard crusts of bread. Eat hard, tough foods.

"Anyone who worries about his health and starts to diet is certain to have sickness. The fear will have a psychological effect and means certain physical distress.

"The best thing that could happen to America would be to raise the price of gasoline to $1 a gallon and make automobiles so expensive that human beings would have to walk. Walking four or five miles a day would add years to the walkers' lives.

"A woman will drive her auto two miles to take a lesson in rolling and calisthenics. If she walked those two miles and back she would not need the lesson. Business men should walk to work in the open air every day instead of driving in enclosed cars.

"Bathe often enough to keep clean, although this is not essential. In the Himalaya mountains, where the tribesmen live a hardy, rugged, dirty life, without fear of blood-pressure or dental soaps, sons have to throw their parents over the cliffs to get them out of the way. The old folks never seem to die.

"Men and women could easily live to be 100 years old if they would use common sense in their daily lives."

English Author's Book Tantalizes His Wife

MORECOMBE, Eng., Feb. 26.—Most men write novels for fame or wealth, but Herbert Maurice Fieldhouse was charged in court with writing his novel "Margaret," to tantalize his wife.

Mrs. Fieldhouse applied for a separation and charged cruelty. Among other things, she said, he had written this novel, containing glowing love passages in flattery of a bar maid.

Hearing her husband was reading portions of his novel in public, Mrs. Fieldhouse admitted she had taken it from his wallet in order to read it herself.

Long excerpts were read in court, written in the best of sheik fashion and brimful of "wonderful eyes" and "glorious hair."

GIRL THIEF SAYS CONSCIENCE HURT

Held Up Druggist's Clerk at Command of 'Shiek', She Tells Judge

By WILLIAM J. HUSKE
For International News Service

CLEVELAND, Feb. 26.—Although Mrs. Anna Strawn, 20, pretty girl bandit, who confessed in court that she robbed a drug store clerk at the point of a gun, when her boy "sheik" told her she was yellow if she didn't do it, will have to face a grand jury investigation and police prison term, the presiding judge told her "she was a plucky girl and he admired her," because her conscience impelled her to make a clean breast of the whole affair.

Anna, last December met and married a man after a brief courtship. Within a week she became suspicious, because her husband, although always supplied with money, never seemed to have a regular job. She left him.

A few days ago, out of work and despondent, with but 38 cents in her pocket, she visited a picture show. Sitting next to her was a youth of 17, who learned her story when she wept.

Tells Her to Steal

"Come and live with me," he pleaded. "I'll cure your troubles."

Worn out with the struggle, the girl assented.

Her happiness lasted four days. Then, pressing a shiny new revolver in her hand, the "sheik" told her to go out and rob a store.

"You're yellow if you don't," he told her.

Smarting under his taunts, she started out. She passed a dozen stores before she staged the hold-up.

A lone clerk in a drug store was the victim. The loot was $50.

Escaping safely, the girl's conscience troubled her. Two days later she went to a telephone and called her victim.

When she identified herself, the clerk said:

"I'm busy. Call me a little later."

When the girl called again the police had been tipped off and she was arrested as she left a telephone booth a few blocks away from the scene of her crime.

Conscience Troubled

In custody she made a clean breast of the whole affair.

"My conscience troubled me after the robbery," she said. "I couldn't sleep; I couldn't eat. So I decided to call the clerk and tell him how sorry I was. I couldn't give back the money, for I'd used it to pay a debt.

"I'm glad it's over, though. No primrose path for me. I'd rather go to prison than live that way!"

Anna was born in a little southern Ohio mining town. When thirteen she went out in the world to seek a living. She scrubbed and washed windows, lack of education preventing her from getting a better job.

Reform organizations have interested themselves in her case. It is likely that when her case is called in court she will be given a suspended sentence and a chance to make good.

"A conscience is a good thing," the court told her. "I don't so much blame you as society, Anna. I hope something may be done for you."

Even those who have moved from one precinct to another will not be required to register again for the school board election, provided, in the consolidation of precincts, they are not placed outside of the enlarged precinct.

Primary Election

Thus it is not necessary to be enrolled on the 1924 great register in order to vote at the election of March 28. It will, however, be necessary to be enrolled on this register after midnight of March 31, in order to vote at the primary election of May 6 and subsequent elections, Mr. Lyons states.

Those who are compelled to register in order to vote at the election of March 28 must register prior to midnight of February 27, it is pointed out, as the law requires a full month to elapse between the date of registration and the date the vote is cast.

Thus, in the same manner, midnight of April 5 will be the limit of time allowed for those to register who wish to vote at the primaries of May 6.

Clears Situation

The statement has been made that only those who have registered since January 1, 1924, will be entitled to vote for school trustees on March 28.

However, the statement from Registrar Lyons to The Glendale Evening News clears the situation, for he says all who have registered since January 1, 1922, and have not moved out of the consolidated precinct, may vote. Of course, those who have reregistered since that time may vote, also, as well as those who have registered since January 1, 1924.

So, according to Mr. Lyons, all who have registered since January 1, 1922, and who have not moved are entitled to vote at the school board election; those who have moved are entitled to vote provided they have not moved out of the consolidated precinct arranged for the school board election; those who have registered since January 1, 1924, are entitled to vote provided they have not moved out of the consolidated precinct.

And, it follows, those not registered since January 1, 1922, must register prior to midnight of February 27, if they wish to vote at the school board election.

Where to Register

Following is a list of Glendale deputy registrars:

Mrs. Myrtle B. Buckman, 1141 Winchester avenue.

Mrs. Eleanor Dell, 103 North Brand boulevard.

James H. Ballagh, 202 West Doran street.

Mrs. Grace Holman, 224 South Central avenue.

Mrs. Hattie Gaylord, 1218 Stanley avenue.

A. P. Steinebrey, and voters may also register at the city clerk's office, city hall.

Rickard Will Face Charges by O'Rourke

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—Tex Rickard and Tom O'Rourke are scheduled to appear before the state athletic commission today to settle their controversy, which grew out of the latter's charges that Rickard was in league with ticket speculators on the sale of tickets for the Dempsey-Firpo bout last September. If O'Rourke can sustain his charges, criminal action against Rickard is promised with the possibility that boxing may be legislated out of existence in this state. Rickard expressed himself as confident his integrity will be sustained.

"We are having some trouble signing up some of the players," he said, "but I look for an early settlement of all differences. The only players signed to date are Babe Ruth, Fred Hoffmann, Wally Schang and Everett Scott."

POLAR AIR TRIP STIRS ARGUMENT

Flight Enthusiasts Cussing Those Who Disparage Their Expedition

By JACK CARBERRY,
For International News Service

LAKEHURST, N. J., Feb. 26.—Folk called Columbus a "nut" in 1492.

Now they're saying the same thing about Captain Frank McCrary and his heroic crew of the wonder ship, "The Shenandoah."

It is all because Captain McCrary is going to fly over the North Pole next June.

"You bet I'll fly over—the Shenandoah will fly any place, anywhere," Captain McCrary predicts.

And in that he is backed by every officer and man from Captain Antone Heimen, the lovable little "Dutchman" who helped build her, down to the humblest machinist of the merely tolerated ground crew.

There's no use in attempting to quote any particular officer or man connected with the coming Arctic flight—all talk alike.

First they cuss—and if you think an army mule driver or a general of marines has any corner on the cuss-word market just drop in at Lakehurst.

"The blankety-blank, etc., etc., public thinks we're crazy!" the speaker, no matter who he may be, will tell you.

Why For? Just That.

"What do you want to go to the North Pole for? We hear that every day. 'You're crazy—you'll never come back,' they tell us."

Then more blankety-blanks follow.

"We don't want to go to the Pole—we are just going to happen to pass the Pole on our trip—"

And then the discussion settles down to a logical explanation of what the polar trip means.

This generation may not see great dirigibles flying around the world—maybe the next generation will not see them either. But the day is coming. Past records prove that.

Now, between Point Barrow, Alaska, and the North Pole are land islands. Science knows that. These islands belong to no men—no man has discovered them. The first nation to get eyes on these lands will own them.

Then consider—the shortest route by air to European Russia is by way of the North Pole. You don't believe it? Get an atlas globe. Look at it. You'll find it is shorter to travel from Point Barrow, Alaska, to Moscow, than it is from New York to Moscow.

"We'll be able to fly to Russia in two days—think of that!" the airmen here will tell you.

To Control Commerce

When that day comes the nation owning the islands of the Arctic — the landing fields—will control the air and with it the commerce of the air.

The United States wants this control. Captain McCrary and the daring men under him dream of winning this ownership for their native land.

In short, the men at Lakehurst will tell you that is the object of the Shenandoah's polar flight.

"Make it? Why, say, it will be an easy trip," every man at the air station declares. "They talk about the cold. Why, it isn't any colder at the Pole than it is up 20,000 feet above New Jersey—we know that. Our motors run and our instruments work in the cold 20,000 feet above the earth. Our motors will run and our instruments will work in the cold at the Pole."

And as for the Shenandoah.

Airmen here stand beside their ship and gaze at it with eyes of love. They praise it. They compare it with the giant ocean liners and with the world's works of art. Pride rings in their voices.

Then they cuss— cuss the folk who think the Shenandoah can't go to the North Pole.

FINEST CAPITAL OF ALL, U. S. AIM

Fifty Million Dollars for Public Buildings Is Sought in Congress

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—That the city of Washington, district of Columbia, should be the handsomest capital city in the world, is the unalterable belief of many high in the councils of the government. That public money should be spent for rents, rather than buildings, seems to be the opinion of a great many congressmen. Between these two extremes the capital of the nation receives such growth as Congress can give it.

President Coolidge approves the plan to expend $50,000,000, over a ten-year period, for public buildings which the government must have, or continue to pay rents which are interest on a much larger sum than $50,000,000.

One feature of the building program which has been suggested is a national gallery of art. That name is now given to a few rooms in the National museum, where a $5,000,000 collection of paintings is housed as an adjunct to the museum. Another suggestion is that if the government seriously considers the establishment of a National University, the buildings be erected on "The Mall" and not, as has otherwise been proposed, on a tract of land to be acquired on the outskirts of the city.

Senator Smoot, chairman of the public building commission, has drafted a bill covering the government needs, somewhat along the lines suggested and approved by President Coolidge, which has been introduced and referred to a subcommittee.

New Orleans Cafe Now Is Haven for Jesuits

NEW ORLEANS, La., Feb. 26.—Lovers of night life in New Orleans in what they term "the good old days before Andy Volstead was on the map," this week were mourning the passing into oblivion of another one of their favorite old haunts—the far-famed Suburban Gardens, in Jefferson parish, known from coast to coast as "Jack Sheehan's Place."

Adding to the deathknell, they point out, is the announcement that the Jesuit fathers are the new and permanent owners of the one-time famous "pleasure Mecca," and they are going to convert it into an establishment of prayer and holy devotions—a retreat where laymen or any member of the Jesuits' order may go for a day or more of fast and prayer.

The purchase price was given as $22,000. The property also includes eight acres inside the levee and about three and a half across on the outside of the levee. Covering the grounds are beautiful gardens of flowers, topped off by a row of New Orleans' famous old oak trees.

IRISH SONGSTER IN PRISON CELL

Mother a Peeress and Sister Grand Opera Star, He Tells Coloradans

CANON CITY, Feb. 23.—The great gray walls of the Colorado state penitentiary today enclosed W. C. Daniels, the "song bird" prisoner, who claims to be the son of a prominent Dublin publisher.

Daniels says his sister, Marie Daniels, is a Metropolitan grand opera singer, and that his mother, now deceased, was of the ancient peerage.

He is 31 years old and a fine physical specimen. He has a rich, cultured baritone voice, with which he has made a comfortable living during his travels over the world. He speaks six languages fluently.

Daniels was sentenced from Denver recently to one year in the penitentiary for forgery. It is the first time in his varied career, he says, that he has run afoul of the law. The "warbling prisoner" already has won popularity with fellow convicts and prison guards by his jovial disposition.

In World War

Daniels served with the Irish Fusiliers early in the World War, later joining Uncle Sam's forces in France. He was honorably discharged from the United States army at Newport News, Va., in 1919.

"It's my first experience with the law," Daniels told prison officials, "and I'm ready to take my medicine. Misfortune is bound to come to every man some time in life.

"I've been a wanderer on the face of the earth for nearly twenty years and am not surprised that I've finally run afoul of the law."

Daniels said he left his home in Dublin when he was 12 years old and has visited every city of consequence on the globe. His first adventure came when he hooked onto a tramp steamer out of Dublin and was cast adrift by the captain fifteen days later on the Canary islands. Another sea trip took him to Crete, where he was marooned for four months, finally making the lower coast of Greece, where a British consul aided him in returning to London.

Globe Trotter

"I've held jobs in Petrograd and Athens," Daniels said; "been in Abyssinia, Persia, Egypt, China and Japan. One day in Seattle and a week later in New York—that's the way life has run for me."

Daniels declares he was thrown into a dungeon in the interior of Spain and never knew why he was imprisoned. He came out gray-haired after thirteen days of confinement.

Daniels was held in the Denver county jail for several weeks before being sentenced to the penitentiary, and, according to reports from the city, officials there have promised to aid him when his prison term is completed.

Disease Is Ravaging Livestock of Britain

LONDON, Feb. 26.—The English livestock industry is seriously threatened by an outbreak of the foot and mouth disease.

The government has adopted a policy of slaughtering in districts where the disease is spreading in order to check the spread of the disease, and wholesale killing has taken place.

The total slaughterings which have taken place are: Cattle, 36,516; sheep, 16,991; pigs, 19,961; goats, 37.

Compensation is given by the government to the owners of the slaughtered cattle, and thus far the British government has spent nearly $6,000,000 for this purpose.

The situation has become so serious that it has been necessary to close golf courses where sheep have become affected by the disease, and the newspapers are even conjecturing whether or not this disease of cattle may not be transferred to humans.

Original frontier currency was wild animal skins, and in several states acres of land, oxen, horses and even cowbells were used for money.

BANDIT NEMESIS IN LOVE LETTERS

Terror of Slavonia Finally Trapped When Billet Doux Is Opened

BELGRADE, Feb. 26.—Jovo Carug, the terror of Slavonia, is in jail in Belgrade. The Slavonian pesantry are devoutly hoping that the Belgrade bastile is strong enough to hold him, but they have their doubts.

"No house is safe from Jovo Carug," the peasants say. "Jovo Carug can get through any wall, no matter how thick."

These sayings are proverbs in Slavonia. They are the reasons why the Slavonians are skeptical about Jovo remaining in durance vile for any great length of time. The jailers at Belgrade, however, declare they have Jovo where they long have wanted him and are going to keep him there.

Throughout a highly industrious and somewhat picturesque career of banditry Jovo Carug has amply justified the fearsome respect which the Slavonian peasants have for his iniquitous prowess. He has confessed to seven murders, eighteen robberies and a few lesser crimes. The authorities contend that Jovo hasn't told half the story.

King of Banditti

For years Jovo has been a bandit king. He has terrorized Slavonia, which is that section of Jugo-Slavia lying between the rivers Save and Danube. Although he has not confined himself to any particular line of crime, his specialty seems to have been setting fire to a building and then robbing the homes of the peasants when they rushed out to extinguish the fire. If murder was necessary to the carrying out of his schemes, Jovo never seemed to hesitate, and such trivial crimes as arson or a hold-up now and then never bothered him at all.

Carug made his home at Vinkovci, about 100 miles from Belgrade, and there he was known as Drzgic, an army contractor. This was merely a cloak of respectability concealing the garments of banditry.

Like Adam, Samson and other noted legendary and historical figures, a woman was the cause of Jovo's downfall. It was letters written to his sweetheart, Manda, a buxom peasant girl, that led to his arrest.

Jovo had designs on the bank roll of a wealthy farmer near Vinkovci. He disguised himself as a cattle dealer, assumed the name of Baric and made the farmer's acquaintance, eventually becoming a guest in his home. One night a band of robbers looted the farmer's house and stole his money, but no one suspected the band was Carug's. He stayed a few days longer to avert suspicion and then went away.

Fell In Love

While visiting the farmer, Jovo met Manda and they fell in love. He also noted that the harvest would soon ge reaped and that, with its sale, the farmer would have more money.

After he left, Jovo wrote many fervent love letters to Manda and occasionally visited her. Meanwhile he perfected his plan to raid the farmer's house by setting fire to his barn and then, while the peasants were fighting the flames, robbed the farmhouse and others nearby. Something happened, however, to prevent Crug participating in this robbery in person to carry out his orders.

Not hearing any news of his proposed coup, Carug wrote to Manda asking if there had been any barn fires in the neighborhood recently. It so chanced that a barn had been burned, and the police were investigating. They decided to open some letters, and one of them happened to be Carug's epistle to Manda.

Note Intercepted

Carug and Manda were both arrested, but the authorities supposed that the man they held was Baric, the cattle dealer. They had no idea they had captured Carug, the notorious bandit, for whom a reward of $5,000 had been offered.

A former army sergeant, however, was asked by Manda to see if he could not do something to help her sweetheart. Accordingly, he went to see him in jail, and something about the prisoner's face struck him as familiar. He pondered and recalled a day when the farm where he once had worked had been robbed by Carug, the bandit. The prisoner, he decided, was Carug.

Confronted with the testimony of the sergeant, Carug confessed his identity. Since then he has admitted scores of crimes.

The Slavonian peasants are sleeping without fear of bandits for the first time in years and praying nightly that the Belgrade jail will hold the mighty Jovo.

The identity of the cabinet members, Heflin added, should first be learned from Doheny.

'DOC' GETS WHAT'S INSIDE OF 'EM

Georgia Surgeon Removes It If Swallowed by Accident, Report

MACON, Ga., Feb. 26.—Another chapter in Macon's miraculous medical operation was written here when Dr. C. L. Pennington extracted a corroded wire nail, three inches in length, from the lower right lobe of little eight-year-old Frank Singletary's lungs.

The nail was accidentally swallowed by the boy, according to his father, nine months ago, when they were bouncing along a rough road in a wagon. Since that time Frank has suffered continually with internal pains and fever. Lack of sufficient funds and a fear lest an operation prove fatal prevented an operation sooner.

It required only two and one-half minutes for Dr. Pennington to perform the operation. An X-ray picture showed the nail headed downward between the fourth and seventh ribs, resting in the lower lobe. An anesthetic was applied, a tube was inserted in the boy's throat, and delicate instruments soon brought the nail from his lungs without even the laceration of the lungs or bronchial tubes.

Several hours after the operation the boy was declared out of danger. Happily at ease for the first time in nine months, he sat up in bed and talked with little playmates who had called to see him.

This was only one of many apparently miraculous operations performed by Dr. Pennington.

Some months ago he extracted an open safety pin from the lungs of a baby. The pin had been swallowed so that the point was embedded in the lung. It had to be turned over so the point would come out last before it could be removed. Today the baby is reported in excellent health.

Another difficult operation was that of removing a gold tooth-crown from the lung of an Orlando (Fla.) woman. The woman had been declared tubercular by several physicians. An X-ray picture by Dr. Pennington revealed the gold tooth-crown; an operation was performed, and the woman soon regained her health.

A number of other cases were cited by nurses in the local hospital. Dr. Pennington, they said, has performed as many as four such operations in a single day.

Advertising Man Is Newspaper Receiver

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 26.—Albert Dollenmayer of the Dollenmayer Advertising Agency has been appointed receiver for the Minnesota Daily Star, a farmer-labor daily with 65,000 circulation and 8,000 stockholders. The appointment was made by Judge Buffington in the Hennepin county district court, on petition of creditors, after representatives of various contending groups among the stockholders and the creditors had failed to agree on a receiver.

TEACHERS WILL TALK OVER RADIO

Education's Aims to Have Hour on Ether Every Afternoon, Plan

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—That the latest discoveries of science should be turned to educational use is deemed most fitting by the national capital educators, who see in the proposed New York City scheme to broadcast news of schools to parents a step towards a better understanding of educational problems by those who have the most interest in them.

Through the Radio Corporation of America the New York Board of Education has arranged to "use the ether" between 2 and 2:30, on all school days, to send forth talks by school teachers, supervisors and educators, as well as programs of essays and recitations by pupils, in order to acquaint the thousands of "listeners-in" with the ends and aims of the school system, its problems, its triumphs and its needs.

Dr. William L. Ettinger, superintendent of schools, says of this innovation:

"I see through this radio service so generously tendered a wonderful opportunity to bring the actual work of the school system into closer relation with the home. I particularly need and desire the help and advice of every member of the school system in arranging for the public such a series of talks and educational entertainments as will make our educational series the subject of table-talk in every home."

It is generally held by educators everywhere that the American people need only to be well informed of actual educational needs, to fill them. This use of the radio is considered to be but another step in the campaign for school publicity which is aimed at the shocking illiteracy record of the United States with the idea that through schools, more schools, better schools, that condition can and must be remedied.

Sleds Nabbed, But Kids Coast in Garbage Cans

SALT LAKE CITY, Feb. 26.—The ingenuity of youth will not be crushed.

Salt Lake police in their efforts to cut down coasting accidents confiscated a patrol load of sleds along the avenues on the North Bench, which had provided nearly a mile of brisk sledding on many streets and resulted in numerous serious injuries and three fatalities.

This week "garbage can" toboganning made its initial bow on the hilly North Bench, when scores of youngsters seized galvanized cans, ash cans, washtubs and other refuse receptacles—and coasting was in full swing again.

FIND LIQUOR IN RAID ON HOME

Stella Goodman Is Arrested On Two Charges; Gets Release on Bond

A raid conducted by Chief of Police John D. Fraser, Captain W. A. Loving and Lieutenant W. J. Royle of the local police department, this morning, resulted in the arrest of Stella Goodman, 645 North Central avenue, on two charges in violation of the Wright Act, one of having liquor in her possession, and the other of selling liquor.

The raid was the result of information placed with the chief by James F. Newton, connected with a cleaning establishment on East Broadway, who, according to Chief Fraser, has made affidavit that he bought liquor from Mrs. Goodman last night.

Find Liquor

When the raiders appeared at the house, Mrs. Goodman was not at home, but she drove up a few minutes later with a woman friend in a Ford coupe. When presented with the search warrant by Chief Fraser, she admitted having whiskey in her home, but stated that it was for her own private use, and denied ever having sold any. She stated she had bought it in "the mountains."

A search of the house brought to light a five gallon jug full of whiskey, another one nearly empty, and numerous gallon jugs and quart bottles and flasks which evidently had contained whiskey, were taken along by the chief as evidence. A five gallon keg of wine found in a downstairs closet was not taken. A decanter partly full of liquor on the sideboard was also confiscated.

Mrs. Goodman was taken before Police Judge Lowe, and, after being charged with two violations of the dry law, put up $1000 cash bond for her appearance in court next Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Brands St. Louis 'Hell on Earth' For Night Life

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 26.—A Kansas editor has just discovered "hell on earth." He paid a visit to St. Louis, he said.

The perspicacious Kansan is Russell Dyer, editor of a weekly paper at Garnett, somewhere in Kansas.

The shame of St. Louis is now known to every citizen in Garnett, for Dyer described St. Louis in a signed article in his paper, based on his personal investigation.

"For the past week," Dyer wrote, "I thought I would get time to tell the people of the west something of what I saw while in the east. I left Garnett at 5:05 on the morning of December 22. The train on which I traveled only made a few stops between Kansas City and St. Louis, Mo. I shall recall with great pleasure what a porter said while I was eating lunch: 'Boss, you are eating and going fifty miles per hour.'

"I found out that there was no justice in St. Louis, that the whole town is run by a bunch of crooked politicians, just like Kansas City, Mo. It is my opinion that such towns as Kansas City and St. Louis should be put under martial law. Then the good people would wake up. I counted fifty-two blind tigers. I do not see how God can let such wicked cities stand as St. Louis and Kansas City. I thought Kansas City was bad, but if you want to take a look at hell, just stop over in St. Louis at 8:20 p. m."

A close inspection of Dyer's paper, however, reveals that on the same page on which appears the indictment of St. Louis he publishes the following concerning Garnett:

"We are surprised to see school teachers and married men riding around together."

Yokohama Again Big Ship Port for Japan

TOKIO, Feb. 26.—Most conclusive proof of the ability of the port of Yokohama to "come back" following its complete destruction was given out at the office of the Admiral Oriental line recently when it was stated that during December the President Jackson, a Shipping Board steamer, took from the port of Yokohama 4,304 bales of raw silk, the largest single shipment of the entire year. Thus less than four months after the disaster Yokohama shipped more in a single shipment than it had sent to the United States at any other previous time during the entire year. The largest previous consignment of silk to the United States during the year 1923 was 4,292 bales shipped in January.

Boy Scouts to Build National Park Trails

GREAT FALLS, Mont., Feb. 26.—Boy Scouts are going to build trails into the unexplored regions of the national parks, under a plan agreed upon by scout executives and national park authorities. The trails will later be thrown open to tourists. Under the plan summer camps for Eagle Scouts will be held in the various parks, and the construction of the trails will be part of the camp routine. The present program calls for scouts from Washington to camp in Mount Rainier park, scouts from Oregon to Crater Lake park, scouts from southern Idaho and southern Montana to Yellowstone park.

Additional Facts Come Out Of Wires In Probe of U. S. Oil Leases

was discovered of an alleged "leak" from certain members of the committee to Fall or McLean.

The appearance of Karl C. Schuyler of Denver, counsel to J. Leo Stack, was delayed.

Mass of Telegrams In Oil Probe Under Inquiry

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—Delving into a mass of reports and rumors that high administration officials had secret telegraphic communication with Albert B. Fall and E. B. McLean, two of the central figures in the oil scandal, the Senate public lands committee today demanded —and got—from the Western Union Telegraph company a huge mass of telegrams that passed into and out of the Washington office of the company last December.

Immediately after securing telegrams from the telegraph officials the committee drove spectators and reporters out of the room and went into executive session to examine the messages.

The committee secured the telegrams over the protest of H. F. Taff, one of the telegraph officials, who contended the messages were "private and confidential." They could only be divulged, he said, with the consent of the senders or addressees, or upon the express direction of the committee. The latter was speedily forthcoming.

Not to Call Hays

Before the committee met this morning, Senator Walsh, Democrat, of Montana said that it was not planned to call former Postmaster-General Will Hays before the committee or Attorney-General Daugherty.

Karl C. Schuyler of Denver, personal counsel to J. Leo Stack, Denver oil man, who is a party to a million-dollar contract with Harry F. Sinclair, was present, but was notified he would not be called until the committee concluded its examination of the Westren Union and Postal Telegraph telegrams.

At the request of Senator Walsh, Democrat, of Montana, Wilton J. Lambert, counsel for McLean, attended today's session. Lambert also arranged for a private conference with Walsh.

Special Counsel Plan Injunction Proceedings

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.— The Teapot Dome scandal, sizzling with freshened vigor, promised a new crop of surprises today.

Karl C. Schuyler, Denver friend and personal attorney of J. Leo Stack, wealthy Denver oil man, who made an unsuccessful attempt under the Wilson administration to secure a lease to the rich Wyoming oil reserve, was called to appear and bring records and documents which were described privately to the Senate public lands committee as sensational.

Under order from the White House, the special counsel, Owen J. Roberts and Atlee Pomerene, plan to institute at once injunction proceedings to prevent further extraction of oil from the reserves. The first action will be taken in Wyoming and California, where Teapot Dome and Elk Hills, respectively, are located, it was said.

Million Dollar Contract

The documents were expected to turn a spotlight on the million dollar contract which Stack and Fred G. Bonfils, publisher of the Denver Post, obtained from Harry F. Sinclair, lessee of Teapot Dome. Under that contract, Sinclair has paid approximately $250,000 in cash to Bonfils and Stack, and has agreed to pay $750,000 additional on next March 15. Stack testified the contract was entered into to quiet claims on the Teapot Dome land.

Managers of the local telegraph companies, H. F. Taff and Thomas P. Dowd, are also expected to appear.

Lewis D. Bond, chief accountant for the committee, in studying the brokerage books, has been in conference with Senator Walsh during the last two weeks and reported he will be ready to report to the committee in open session within a day or two, possibly tomorrow. The accountants are concluding their study of the books of Harry Payne Whitney, business associate of Sinclair, and of J. P. Benkard & company, New York. Democratic members of the committee are known to be highly pleased at the result of the accountants' investigation, thus far.

Not Ready for Sinclair

The committee has definitely decided not to call Sinclair himself until the investigation of the stock books has been completed. They desire to ask him regarding the names of certain men found on the books as dealing in Sinclair stock.

Unless the committee goes further in an investigation of Mexican oil affairs, Senator Lenroot, Republican of Wisconsin, chairman, announced that he did not think it would be necessary to recall William G. McAdoo. This opinion is also held by other committee members.

In view of the admission of Attorney-General Harry M. Daugherty that he dealt in Sinclair stock, it was indicated today that Daugherty might be asked to take the stand to reveal how extensive his stock operations were.

Senator Walsh today ordered a subpoena issued for G. D. Wahlberg, of New York, former private secretary to Sinclair. The committee wants to question him about his previous testimony concerning giving Liberty bonds to a

PLEA FOR LIVES OF PEDESTRIANS

Harry N. Fowler Speaks At Exchagne Club on Traffic Problem

V. B. Stone, city manager, addressing the members of the Exchange club at its regular luncheon today, announced that he, together with Chief of Police J. D. Fraser, had been authorized to work out a system of standards to be placed adjacent to the city schools requiring motorists to slow down to five miles per hour when passing school houses.

"It is as much our duty to save the pedestrians in our cities, especially the children, as it is to take up arms and fight for our country in time of war," declared Harry N. Fowler, former member of the Chicago Traffic Commission, in an address before the Exchange club at the weekly luncheon in the Egyptian Village today.

"There is a constant battle going on in our streets today," he added, "where death stalks triumphantly. But the pedestrians must also be educated, as well as the motorists, for there are faults on both sides. If we fail to reach some solution of the present rapidly growing problems I predict that the near future will see the enactment of legislation that will limit the speed of automobiles to about twenty miles an hour and that will provide for the installation of governors on all cars that will hold them down to the speed allowed by law."

Fears Slow Up

Mr. Fowler asserted that he was opposed to any such legislation as he feared it would tend to slow up the entire nation.

Mr. Fowler described the campaigns that had been carried on in Chicago to cut down the death rate from automobile accidents, telling of the buzzers, whistles, wig-wags, elevated platforms and tunnels that had been employed to achieve the ends sought, and declared that the reduction in the death rate in Chicago has already shown a sensible diminution and the prospects are that it will be still further reduced, he claimed.

The members of the Exchange club and their guests listened to Mr. Fowler with the closest attention, realizing that the traffic problem presents one of the most important that Glendale has to solve, and at the close of his address many questions were asked dealing with the local situation, to many of which he was able to offer suggestions of real merit.

City Officials Present

Among those who were present at the luncheon were Mayor Robinson and all the members of the City Council, who were keenly interested in Mr. Fowler's talk; Chief of Police J. D. Fraser, City Manager V. B. Stone, H. V. Vandewater, city building superintendent; Geo. B. Karr, president of the Rotary club; A. L. Baird, president of the Kiwanis club, and the following members of the Board of Education: D. J. Hibben, president; Mr

Medal Of Honor Awarded To U. S. Navy Officer For Rescue In Japanese Quake

By SEARS TAYLOR
For International News Service

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—The navy department has awarded the medal of honor to Lieutenant Thomas J. Ryan, attached to the American embassy in Tokio, "for the part he played in the rescue of a stricken countrywoman pinned in the wreckage of the Grand Hotel, in Yokohama, Japan, during the recent earthquake."

Behind this cryptic citation lies a story of daring and courage that rivals the romantic tales of Dewey, Farragut, Decatur and other navy heores.

Navy officers just returned from the Orient say young Lieutenant Ryan was in the lobby of the Grand Hotel in Yokohama when the first earthshock rocked the building's foundations.

He leaped through a window to the Bund, a street running along the waterfront. When he reached the seawall a second shock occurred, toppling him overboard. With this shock the walls of the Grand Hotel crumbled, and the roof fell in. A third and a fourth shock of similar intensity followed closely, and not alone the hotel but the entire city lay in ruins.

The air was filled with dust of the mortar and plaster ground fine between the bricks and the heavy stone blocks of the crumpled walls of the buildings. By staying in the water, Lieutenant Ryan was safe, however, and as soon as he was able he crawled over the seawall. He was joined by another escaped occupant of the hotel who told Lieutenant Ryan of a woman pinned in the wreckage of a room in the hotel. Both went to her assistance, although, whipped by a strong wind, fires were sweeping rapidly toward the hotel ruins. In the face of this they climbed through a window and found an American woman with one leg wedged in a mass of debris and a heavy beam across her chest.

Near her was a section of heavy brick chimney. The beam was rather easily removed; but freeing the buried leg involved removal of the surrounding debris, which would allow the chimney to topple on her. The only solution was to tear down the chimney, brick by brick, and this they started to do. Fighting against time, the naval lieutenant and his assistant worked frantically, while shock after shock rocked the earth, and fire filled the hotel ruins with intense smoke.

Others Had Failed

Others had attempted to extricate the woman, but had given up. Realizing her peril, she begged the two men not to leave her, and they assured her they wouldn't. As the smoke became unbearable and the flames drew rapidly closer, Lieutenant Ryan realized they must get her out immediately even if part of her leg had to be left behind.

With her arms locked about Lieutenant Ryan's neck, the woman finally was wrenched clear. Nearly blinded and almost overcome by smoke, they were just able to carry her to the window, from which all three fell into a mesh of fallen telephone wires. By keeping their faces close to the ground they got enough fresh air to revive them.

As soon as they were able, the two men carried her to a nearby sampan, where they rendered first aid. The woman suffered several broken ribs; both ankles were crushed, and her body was badly bruised. After waiting in the sampan seven hours, Lieutenant Ryan procured a launch and delivered his charge to the doctor on board the Empress of Australia, lying in the harbor at the time.

Undaunted by the experience, Ryan immediately attempted to leave the ship to render further aid on shore, but the launch had left. While thus held aboard he assisted the refugees and finally secured transportation to the shore, where he again pitched into the rescue work.

In awarding the medal of honor to Lieutenant Ryan, Secretary of the Navy Denby said:

"The act was an unquestionable display of courage, a spirit of self-sacrifice and disregard of personal danger to a very marked degree on the part of Lieutenant Ryan and his assistant."

Lieutenant Ryan is a graduate of the naval academy and is now on his way to the United States from Tokosoki, Japan.

LEGION TO ADMIT 25 NEW MEMBERS

Recently Adopted Ritual to Be Used Friday Night At Initiation

The first initiation of Glendale Post, No. 127 of the American Legion, under the ritual as recently adopted by National Headquarters, will be held next Friday night, February 29. There are some twenty-five candidates already accepted, and the number will probably be increased this week.

The members of the local post have been invited to attend a "Dedication of the Flag" service to be held at the Glendale Presbyterian church, Sunday evening, March 2. Rev. W. E. Edmonds, pastor, will deliver the address, and short talks will be made by several of the Legionnaires. The members will meet at the corner of Harvard and Louise street at 7 o'clock.

Will Greet Fitts

At the regular meeting Friday, March 7, the members of Tujunga, Montrose and Eagle Rock posts will be invited to participate with the local post in welcoming Buron R. Fitts, past state commander, Department of California, who will be present and deliver an address of interest to every ex-soldier. A record-breaking crowd is expected.

Tax on International Marriages Defeated

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—An effort to place a tax on "international marriages" was defeated in the House yesterday. Representative Blanton, Democrat, of Texas, moved to amend the tax bill to require the parents of an American girl marrying a foreigner to pay to the federal government a sum equal to the bride's dowry, and to levy a tax of 75 per cent against the parents' estate upon the death of the father. The amendment was rejected by a vote of 107 to 22.

Without a record vote, the House yesterday defeated a proposal by Representative Paige, Republican, of Massachusetts, to levy an inheritance tax of 50 per cent on all estates of $25,000 or over.

Aged Indian's Squaw Follows Dead Chieftian

YREKA (Siskiyou Co.), Feb. 26.—Isabel Smith, for more than fifty years the wife of "Bogus Tom" Smith, chief of the Shasta tribe of Indians, who died a few days ago at the age of 105, followed her husband to the grave today.

Grief over his passing was the cause of her death, although the chieftain's wife was almost 90 years old.

"I am going to join Tom," she told relatives and friends who gathered at her bedside a few hours before she passed away.

Cowboy Evangelist Will Stage Revival

Rev. "Bud" Robinson, the famous cowboy evangelist of Texas, will open a series of meetings at the Nazarene church, 1032 South Glendale avenue, on Fridya, March 1, and will continue to preach for ten days, according to an announcement by Rev. H. A. Scheideman, pastor of the church.

"Uncle Buddy," as the evangelist is known to a wide circle of friends in many parts of the world, is said to be a unique character and an outstanding and humorous pulpit orator. During his services he will relate the story of his life, which, Rev. Scheideman declares, is a most interesting recital and one that proves the wonders of God's grace in the salvation of sinners.

The power of the evangelist's sermons and his striking character are powerful magnets and his services are always attended by capacity crowds, so that it will be necessary, it is claimed, for those who wish to hear him to be on time promptly at the beginning of the services.

WINDOW SHOPPING MOST FASCINATING

Egyptian Sweaters, Indian Tom-Toms Among Many Intriguing Displays

By THE STROLLER
Written for The Evening News.

Of course, you go window shopping. It's the greatest little game in the world, not barring mah jongg. Enjoyed by old and young, the windows of Glendale stores are made most attractive. Something new, something to intrigue the interest, something seasonable, and something to buy. That's the reason why, of course.

Glendale merchants are becoming masters in the matter of dolling waxen dummies with fine wraps or sheer gowns—the latest styles created here on the coast, in New York or in Paris. You will admire the windows of the local department stores.

But it is the unusual perhaps, that attracts the most attention. For instance, have you seen the new King Tut sweaters—Egyptian stuff for the young man? They are on display in a men's shop window.

How to Exercise

And other stores along Brand boulevard are featuring golfing goods. One never knows just how much there is to that simple game of the old Scotch shepherds until the paraphernalia is previewed. As for prices, well, whatever you want to pay, it seems.

Moving along past the hardware stores the faithful lawnmower is seen reposing in a manner to remind you that not only does the grass need cutting, but perhaps you had better buy a safety razor. Garden seeds, fruit trees and shrubs also are being pushed at this particular time of the year.

Unusual, also, is the price on overcoats. Ready-to-wear dealers have a great deal to say about the climate, we'll say. People are wearing spring clothing, even buying straw hats, it is rumored, which isn't nice, at all.

Need a Tom-Tom?

A shortage of real tom-toms on the reservations is predicted if the music merchants do not stop buying that particular type of drum from the Indians and displaying them as part of a complete jazz orchestra drum set. It is said that one adventurer in Mexico last year purchased a deerskin drum with a membership card for a well known American lodge. The Yaqui mistook it for American money.

Yes, and radio sets in several store doors speak for themselves So all in all it is a pleasurable treat to stroll around the business district of Glendale on a window shopping tour. The merchants won't complain if you buy, either.

Rev. H. J. Hartzell Looks for Home Here

GATEWAY GIVES 'INDOOR CIRCUS'

Orpheum Act Will Be Added Attraction on Program for Two Nights

The management of the Gateway Theatre will present a special number on Wednesday and Thursday, in addition to the regular picture—the Don Carlos "Indoor Circus," an Orpheum act that has been a distinct hit wherever shown.

The act includes troupes of trained dogs, ponies and monkeys. Some of the stunts these animals do are no less than miraculous, states Manager B. E. Roper of the Gateway Theatre. Anyone who loves animals and delights in seeing what they can be made to accomplish should not miss this show.

Mr. Roper has seen the Don Carlos "Indoor Circus" and declares it is the most remarkable thing of its kind he has ever witnessed. Some of the animals are made to display almost human intelligence and particularly in its team work the act excels, he states.

Newspapers in the Canal Zone are published in both English and Spanish, according to Mr. Van Dame, who subscribed for The Glendale Evening News.

VARIED PROGRAM AT BIG BENEFIT

Broadway Fathers' Auxiliary Completes Arrangements for Big Affair

Glendale musicians, radio characters, a California writer, moving picture stars, a Persian prince and a magician are all included in the medley of entertainment announced by the Broadway Fathers' Auxiliary of the Parent-Teacher Association, for the big benefit program, to be given Tuesday night, March 4, in the auditorium of the Broadway High school.

The Broadwway "dads" agreed unanimously that one big benefit affair was much better than having several like events of less importance given through the year. So tney have engaged the assistance of the Cavanah Studios in arranging this all star program for next Tuesday night.

Evening News Leads

Of these 1320 families interviewed, the representatives found that more read the Glendale Evening News than any other newspaper, its lead over the nearest competitor being 31 per cent, proving conclusively that it is supreme in the field, meeting all competition and surpassing the largest metropolitan dailies in numbers of copies read by Glendale people.

The Glendale Evening News is, in fact, one of the widest read and most successful local papers on the Pacific coast, both in circulation and in advertising content. In order to keep pace with its phenomenal growth, which has paralleled that of Glendale, it has found it necessary to enlarge its home at 139 South Brand boulevard, and has ordered a twenty-four-page Duplex tubular plate press and equipment, entailing an investment of over $40,000, and which is now en route in two full freight cars.

Hear Burglar Alarm, No Trace of Thieves

The police flying squadron, consisting of Lieutenant Nunn, Sergeant Kenyon, Officers Hedrick, Wurtz, Schilling and Forsyth, recently organized to comat burglars operating in Glendale, responded to the ringing of the burglar alarm at Pendroy's store, Harvard and Brand, this morning at 5:30 o'clock. Although they conducted a thorough search of the premises, no trace of thieves could be found and it is presumed the alarm rang because it was out of order.

MA NATURE MOPS WORLD WITH FOG

But There's Some Difference Between That Here And 'Over There'

By GIL A. COWAN
Of The Evening News Staff.

"Isn't this just like dear old Lunnon?" was the remark overheard here in the fog the other evening. It was mighty like a person from London town to say so, alright, but the swashbuckling son of a sea cook who doesn't know his applesauce sufficiently to compare our nice, clean, warm, invigorating substitute for rain had better read the most recent dispatches from across the pond.

It is with pleasure we quote from our London correspondent to International News Service, who writes:

Sleep Three Days

"The visibility of a 1924 London fog is slightly less than that of a coal mine at midnight; during the latest fog the street lights were on 72 hours; birds at the zoo slept on their perches three days waiting for sunrise; all airplane fights were canceled and the fog cost London $5,000,000 a day, according to Lawrence W. Chubb, secretary of the Coal Smoke Abatement society."

That's a nice report, isn't it? Nevertheless, we have no reason to doubt the veracity of the writer. And to think that even the snifter of Southern California fog should bring forth such an odious comparison!

Why, there's seldom a day the sun doesn't shine in the Southland, although for a few hours in the morning Dame Nature proceeds to use the spongy mop of fog to clean the dust from the scenery. However, she is a hustling housekeeper and it seldom takes more than two or three hours to complete the task.

Variety of Fog Here

The writer has seen fog so thick at 11 p. m. that you could cut it with a knife. By 2 a. m. it had entirely disappeared—being only low-lying clouds. And at sun-up a light ground fog was lifted into the heavens to give the artists the airy cloud effects so necessary to perfect the piece they are painting.

Yet to think of the fog mixed with coal soot, dirty, slimy, messy, dripping chunks of it such as the cabbies cut around Trafalgar square—pooh, pooh, pooh and 'a-choo, we sneeze.

PICK DELEGATES TO AID COOLIDGE

W. E. Evans of Glendale Is Named From 9th District At Convention

Supporters of President Coolidge, in an enthusiastic meeting at San Francisco, yesterday endorsed a complete ticket of twenty-nine candidates for delegate to the Republican national convention, pledged to work for the renomination of the president as the standard bearer of the party in the coming campaign. W. E. Evans of Glendale and A. L. Rowland of Pasadena were nominated as the delegates from the ninth congressional district.

Every district in the state was represented at the convention, which rendered a stirring tribute to the president and which developed a spirit of harmony that is declared to be the most remarkable example of party unity known in California in the past ten years.

Lauds President

Frank P. Merriam, speaker of the State Assembly and a member of the National Coolidge Campaign committee in this state, was made temporary chairman of the meeting and was subsequently chosen permanent chairman, and he aroused a storm of cheers when he declared that President Coolidge stands for the right, with an ability to see that the high places of government are made clean.

Urging that the citizens of the state be aroused to the necessity of registering and voting, Mr. Merriam declared that this is a matter, not of politics or partisanship, but of good citizenship.

Resolutions adopted by the convention pledging the delegation from California to the Coolidge candidacy and giving reasons why the Republican party in the state and the nation will be led to victory under the banner of President Coolidge.

T. V. MILLEA BUYS GORDON'S STORE

Prominent Merchandise Man Gets Popular Business, Plans Expansion

Eugene Gordon, proprietor of Gordon's Women's furnishings store at 119 North Brand boulevard, has sold out his business at that address to T. V. Millea, who will conduct the store along the same lines as heretofore, adhering closely to Mr. Gordon's policy of "right prices, dependable merchandise and a square deal to all."

Mr. Millea has been engaged in the dry goods and women's furnishings business in southern California for eighteen years, Mr. Gordon states. For five years he was one of the merchandise managers at Robinson's, in Los Angeles, and has also been identified with Bullock's, of that city. His knowledge of the merchandise wants of southern California women is considered the equal of anyone in the business.

Plan Expansion

Mr. Millea contemplates a fifty-six-foot addition to the rear of the store and when this has been built he will extend the present lines, carrying the same grades of women's and children's apparel as at present, in still greater variety.

"Through my connections in the east I will buy direct and not have to deal with the jobbers," he says. "This will effect a very decided saving, which I will pass on to those patronizing Gordon's store. The result will be that, taking into consideration also the low overhead as compared with that borne by Los Angeles stores, we will be able to make buying at home a mighty profitable slogan for Glendale women."

To Buy Home Here

Mr. Millea states that he located in Glendale only after looking over every city of any importance in southern California. "Glendale is more talked of and has more to talk about," he says, "than any of the rest of them. It is a real live place and the white spot of the whole southwest."

Mr. Millea will bring his family to Glendale in the near future and buy a home here.

CELEBRATES FIFTEEN BIRTHDAYS IN 64 YEARS

'Wireless' Widow Seeks Freedom; Couple Wedded Eighty Years

He is 64 years old but he has had only fifteen birthdays! John R. Courtney of Atlanta, Ga., is one of those unfortunate—or fortunate—persons who happened to be born on February 29. He should have had sixteen birthdays, but he had to worryq along with one from 1896 to 1904 because Leap Year is skipped on the turn of the century.

For a century there have been "poker widows"; for a decade decade "golf widows" have been common—now enter the "wireless widows." Mrs. Cora Lee White of Minneapolis, has filed suit for a divorce from her husband charging that her spouse's habitual "radio-addiction" constituted "cruel and inhuman treatment."

Eighty-eight years ago they were married in Russia, the bride then being 16 and the groom 20. Mr. and Mrs. I. Yasafsky, of Baltimore, claim the world's record for long time marriage.

East and west do meet once in a while, despite the well known Kipling dictum. Kaneko Baumfield, beautiful Japanese wife of Herman Baumfield, on their arrival in San Francisco on a tour of the world, said, "We have been married six years and we're very happy." Baumfield has been a resident of Tokyo sixteen years.

Answering questions is their business. Norman G. Gzowski established a new kind of information bureau that became a success immediately. The firm undertakes to answer any reasonable questions on any subject whatever, for a yearly subscription. He says that 80 per cent of the queries can be auswered in two minutes.

HOUSE PHYSICIAN FOR SANITARIUM

Dr. John D. Rogers Appointed To Local Institution By Adventists

Dr. John D. Rogers, a graduate of the College of Medical Evangelists at Loma Linda, near San Bernardino, has been appointed house physician of the new Glendale Sanitarium. It is expected that he will connect with the institution as soon as possible.

Frank Fuller of Los Angeles, has accepted the appointment of druggist of the new institution. He is a brother of Dr. Leroy Fuller, of Los Angeles, and is a registered pharmacist. A complete pharmacy will be installed in the new building. First class hardwood fixtures have been purchased, and will be installed in a room on the second floor of the medical building that has been designated for this purpose.

The medical building is being rushed to completion, so that there will be no delay in the giving of treatments when patients from the old sanitarium are removed.

Rooms Are Prepared

A corps of nurses and other women assistants under the direction of Mrs. I. J. B. Ringstrom matron, have been hard at work placing furniture in the rooms that have been carpeted. The window shades are also being hung. A look at the front of the institution indicates that about half of the windows now have shades hanging from them, and such rooms have a very home-like appearance. Some of those who have been assisting Mrs. Ringstrom are Mrs. J. W. Harris, superintendent of nurses; Miss Steunenberg, Miss Mary Kisz, and Mrs. D. A. Ochs, the preceptress. These women have also planned for the rooming of the nurses in the new institution. It is quite probable that the nurses will be moved into the new building Wednesday from their present quarters in what has been known as the Nurses' Home on Jackson street, opposite the old sanitarium.

Shades have also been hung in the parlor and dining room, and the furniture that has been stored in these two rooms is gradually being removed to the rooms where it will be placed permanently. The doors have also been hung, so these two rooms are now shut off from the corridor for the time being.

A complete ice plant is being installed, so that the institution can have its own ice at all hours of the day or night. The plant will have a capacity of two tons a day, and will be located in the basement.

Decorators are now at work in the main lobby. They have placed canvas around the uprights, and also on walls, so that it will afford protection from bumps by wheel chairs, and also keep the paint from breaking, or peeling.

To Transplant Trees

Many of the trees that have done so much toward beautifying the old sanitarium are now being boxed, and will soon be removed to the new grounds. The work of boxing these trees is being done under the supervision of George Sydney Smith, the gardener, who is directing the work with peculiar memories of how these trees and many kinds of plants have kept him busy for the past fifteen years.

Mr. Smith delights to call the botanical names of the different species of trees facing Broadway and the other streets that surround the old institution. He says the collection is quite varied. Among them are the mahogany, Bohemia Albia, a Japanese evergreen, which he says is the only one of its kind in this part of the country, an oleander, a laurestinus, which is an ornamental tree and many others. He says there are several Norfolk Island pines that will also be moved, a rubber tree, a century plant, and a host of shrubs, as well as a large bed of chrysanthemums.

Bears and Stanford Will Battle Tonight

OAKLAND, Feb. 26.—In what may be the deciding game in the northern section of the Pacific Coast conference, the California and Stanford university basketball teams will meet at the auditorium here tonight. California is in the lead by virtue of the victory scored Saturday night over Stanford. Loss of Hueovinin, California's big center, has weakened the Berkeley five while Stanford will present a stronger line-up with Oliva back in the game.

Japanese Reported Struck by Automobile

L. Silver of 955 West Forty-third street, Los Angeles, was brought to police headquarters last night at 6 o'clock by Officer J. J. Claxton. It was reported that he had run his automobile over a Japanese named Tanaka, of 2960 West Los Feliz road.

The Japanese could not be located after the accident, and as it occurred in Los Angeles, Silver was released to report to the Lincoln Heights police station.

Flower Vases Given To Broadway School

The congregation of the Broadway Methodist church were happily surprised at the Sunday morning service when the pastor, Rev L. J. Many expressios of appreciation were made by the membership.

OBLIGATIONS IN WORSHIP OF GOD

Payment of Tithes for Work Of Church Considered Privilege, Claim

"Tithing" was the subject of the morning sermon by the pastor, Rev. L. J. Millikan, at the Broadway Methodist church Sunday, who chose for his text Mal. 3: 10 and 11. He said in part: "This is a wonderful text, and God sent it by a prophet to a back-slidden church whose members were going through a form of worship, but where no life, no spirituality existed. He found it necessary to send punishment for their laxness in religion, and for their disobedience to His requirements. They did not deem worship a privilege, but a duty only, and asked "Wherein have we been lax? Or where have we failed? Wherein have we robbed God?' They were informed very positively 'by withholding their tithes and offerings.' If that requirement is in reality as true today as it was at that time, and it surely is, then men are robbing God in like manner by withholding their tithes and offerings, and disregarding God's laws.

"No man is exempt from God's requirements, be he church member or not—the only difference is the church has recognized its obligation to tithe. It is to be regretted that so few live up to God's plan. He has taken man into co-partnership with Him; furnished everything necessary, being the absolute owner of all things; placed His possessions in man's care, under his control and management; all this on the most liberal terms, for all He requires is the small tithe of one-tenth. He further promises that if man will deal justly and not rob Him of His rightful share of the increase, He will open the windows of Heaven and pour out upon him rich blessings—temporal blessings—in abundance. He challenges us to prove Him. Not once has He failed, for He will not, nor cannot fail. Oh, what liberality on God's part! And yet men, some claiming to be His followers, are every day robbing Him. What base ingratitude!

To Fulfill Law

"The question is sometimes asked, "Are we not free from those old laws?" No, no—our Savior said He came into the world not to destroy the law but to fulfill it, which means He added to or tightened the existing laws."

At the night service Mr. Millikap delivered a stirring sermon on "The Lost Son," and drew, very forcefully, pictures true to the lives of young men who stray away from home and get out from under the influence fo the church.

Redlands Bulldogs And Oxy to Clash

The Oxy varsity basketball team will end its season next Saturday night when it clashes with the Redlands Bulldogs in a game at the Franklin Gym that promises to be a humdinger. The Tigers are roaring mad and the new combination of Holiday, Sackett, Bennitts, Ebers and Ridderhoff, seems to be working to satisfaction. They nearly frightened the Cubs into defaulting last week when they started scoring against the conference winners. Oxy will fight hard to win the last game. They do not want to end the season with winning a single casaba game. At present they hold the cellar position and will continue to do so, whether they beat Redlands or not.

Faith—Have You Got It?
People Can't Keep Peace
Not Even in Los Angeles
Four Short Paragraphs

By Gil A. Cowan

Faith—have you got it? Let the Irishman answer, "Faith, I have not!"

By that one does not mean religious belief, but faith in the power of man to keep the peace. To use an Irish illustration again, a policeman tried to stop Mike from beating his spouse, but she grabbed the shillalah and laid him out. It was her fight. And she finished it, too.

The United States, like the policeman, has had and still has the opportunity of entering the European embroglio. A very gentle league of nations assembles at Geneva, but look ye down off the Alpine altitudes into Bulgaria and see what is going on. They are holding a red riot over there, murdering the cabinet at Sofia and raising ned in general.

Our travel correspondent, W. B. Kirk, writes that Greece today occupies a precarious position, with the Turk—Moslem, if you please—making things miserable in the near east for all Christians. And that is not all. Soviet Russia and the Japanese empire are reported to be at sword's point. There is Buddhist pitted against atheist, if the rest of the world doesn't look out.

Rumblings in India and Egypt are gloomy forebodings of the inability of man to keep the peace. We might mention a few instances in America where only the rule of the gun is recognized, and it depends upon who holds the gun as to what will happen.

Peculiarly, it is not a question of capital and labor, or the fault of the ruling classes, for governments are about as good today as ever. It is nothing more or less than sheer inability of people to keep the peace. For that reason one cannot help but favor some sort of court for international arbitration of disputes, but it is utter folly to believe that any league of nations will be able to dictate to a world filled with dormant dynamite, if you get what we mean, and make its mandates worth the paper they are written upon.

Keeping the peace in Los Angeles is equally as difficult as it is in the world at large. Regardless of the fact that the publishers—some of them—are members of the Crime Commission, supposed to suppress crime, the current copy of a metropolitan daily has five local crime stories on Page 1. Not so bad, not so bad.

Incidentally, we have prohibition, panacea for all crime, it was said. But now that the crooks keep sober the police have a difficult job in capturing them. Manicure girls boast of the bootleggers they know, but the Los Angeles police or the federal enforcement officers do not make the acquaintance of these gentry.

In the good old days San Pedro was a rip-roaring, wide-open town. Sober as an owl last Sunday night. The water front no longer reeks of liquor, but you will find those half-baked individuals who formerly were drunk drinking in the words of some rotten radical. People simply do not want to be peaceable, when they are not occupied with something better to do.

It should be the function of all governments to keep the people occupied. Southern California must do something to provide labor for the interminable influx of population. And that's that.

The suggestion of the Coolidge Republicans in San Francisco yesterday that C. C. Chapman of southern California be named as a candidate for vice-president will strike a responsive chord.

Now that Rainmaker Hatfield has been found hibernating in Glendale, those desiring to place their orders for cloudbursts and the like should use due caution in the matter.

Forest fires in February are "unusual," but California has 'em. What California hasn't got isn't worth naming, even to San Franciscans who invest their money in Los Angeles real estate.

"Goat Island for Dry Navy," said headline. No need for comment.

'LIFE IN CHRIST' IS KERR'S TOPIC

Spiritual Existence Comes As Gift From Savior, Says Evangelist

"Life in Christ" was the topic at the special services at the First Methodist church last night. Rev. H. W. Kerr was the preacher, and he announced as his text, "For to be carnally mined is death, but to be spiritually minded is life and peace."

"This remarkable text," said the speaker,' was the life motto of the sainted Frances Willard. Not satisfied alone with conversion, she sought and obtained this gift—the spiritual mind—and how it inspired her is seen in the marvelous life work she accomplished. We are all born with the carnal mind.

Christ's Gift

"Spiritual life is a gift from the Lord Jesus Christ. But, like every other gift, it must either be accepted or rejected. There is the difficulty, that all men do not accept the inestimable gift. While on the other hand, Christ always accepteth gifts of the contrite heart. He has conferred upon us the dignity of choosing. Death is separation from God, here as well as in eternity. Without him we will have an eternity of night.

"And, just as in his earthly ministry the woman who touched his garment was made whole, and just as with a touch he restored the woman sick with a great fever, so today the loving touch of the living Christ is restoring the sin-sick soul, changing the carnal minded to spiritual minded."

The subject for the evening, "The Story of My Life," promises to be of unusual interest. Special music will be rendered.

Boy Caught Beneath Tractor Is Rescued

LAKEPORT, Feb. 26.—Frenzied neighbors for more than an hour watched Clarence Jones, youthful farm laborer, as he lay pinned under a tractor which had overturned, without being able to aid him.

The tractor was in such a position that the slightest movement without the aid of protecting appliances would have caused it to slip and crush out the life of the boy.

Finally aid was secured from this city and the machine was lifted off Jones, who escaped unhurt except for the nervous strain of expecting death momentarily for sixty minutes.

SHOWDOWN LOOMS IN BOXING FEUD

Rickard and O'Rourke Battle To Decide Mitt Game's Fate In Gotham

By DAVIS J. WALSH
For International News Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—The showdown between Tex Rickard and Tom O'Rourke will be enacted this week with the last of boxing's nine lives lying in the pot. The cards have been dealt, O'Rourke charging Rickard has worked in league with ticket speculators. He has been called by Rickard with a demand for a hearing. It will probably begin at the weekly meeting of the New York State Athletic commission today.

If Rickard wins, boxing in all probability will live. If O'Rourke cashes, the sport and all its million purses is likely to be declared null by act of legislature.

"I'll get Rickard," O'Rourke has said, in effect.

"He has nothing on me," has been the sense of Rickard's reply.

Kill or Cure

For the sake of those who like boxing, it is to be devoutly hoped that O'Rourke has nothing on Rickard. The former has posed as a crusader, a cure-all who would purge the sport of a human octopus. Boxing men fear that it will be a case of kill rather than cure.

O'Rourke may be actuated, as he claims, by the motives of a purist, but along Broadway he is regarded as a man who has carried a personal issue to a point where the income of thousands is involved. O'Rourke has never forgiven Rickard for ousting him as a match maker at the Polo grounds last summer.

It is hardly credible that a man of O'Rourke's intelligence would bring such charges without substantial foundation and it is equally difficult to believe that Rickard could be caught in such a simple trap. If he was, it is the general opinion that a national scandal will be the result and that boxing once more will die an abortive death, with the possibility that the district attorney will be called into the case to take criminal action if the evidence justifies this move.

Solons Waiting

It is admitted here that the legislature at Albany is only awaiting some tangible evidence to take definite action against the life of boxing. It has already before it the Lord bill which would legislate the sport out of existence once more, and a scandal such as O'Rourke threatens would cause a stampede of law makers to ge behind the measure.

Rickard, however, is calm, almost cold, in the face of the investigation.

"I am glad this matter has come up," he said. "There have been all kinds of rumors and innuendoes circulated about me and my business but this is the first time that any of my detractors have come out in the open. I am glad of that. I will come out in the open also and fight the issue to the end."

DePalma Declines to Race Sig Haughdahl

Ralph De Palma, George Bentel's ace at Ascot, has flatly refused to race Sig Haugdahl, speed demon, in a special match event next Sunday.

The crack Italian does not object to trying conclusions with the Swedish star if certain conditions are complied with, however.

"Haugdahl is trying to slip over a hot one on me," said Ralph. "He knew all the time that no sane driver would agree to let him drive a big Fiat against a 122-inch Miller over a track so hazardous and rough as Ascot. I have notified Bentel that I absolutely will not agree to race Haugdahl next Sunday nor on any other Sunday unless he gets another car which comes somewhere near being the size of mine.

"I am willing for him to drive a 183 car against my 122 job, but that is as far as I am willing to go."

Glendale Has Prospects Of Having Class C League Baseball This Summer

By AL DIX
Of The Evening News Staff.

The Los Angeles club of the Pacific Coast league finally came through with their long awaited decision on the proposed new Class C league yesterday, and stated that if approved by the rest of the club owners, they would not object to the location of a club in Glendale.

Final steps in the formation of the league have been held up for several weeks awaiting this decision, and President Harry Williams of the Coast circut sent out wires last night asking for an immediate reply from the club owners asking their position in the matter. At the meeting of the magnates of the Coast league in Oakland last month, every club owner with the exception of W. H. Wrigley of the Angels assured Frank Kerwin and Josh Clarke, who were present as representatives of the new league, that the proposed circuit would have their support.

Will Play Ball Here

Los Angeles debated a long time on the question, some of the stockholders being of the opinion that the Glendale franchise would injure the drawing power of the Coast club. Although no "high pressure" methods were used, the Angel owners were made to see that, regardless of their position, there would be baseball in Glendale this summer, and that if the new league did not go through, there would be independent ball of a very high character.

President Williams stated yesterday that he expected to have the answers to his wires in by Wednesday, so that formal application for recognition may be made to J. H. Farrell, secretary of the National association, this week.

Kerwin in Town

Frank Kerwin, who now owns the Glendale baseball park, was in town yesterday afternoon conferring with several local men regarding the situation. The White Sox have been in financial difficulties for some time past, and Grant Leischner, who was one of the original partners, has withdrawn. Kerwin stated yesterday that he hoped this week to complete the refinancing of the club, to put it on a good, sound, financial basis.

Cities holding franchises in the new circuit, in addition to Glendale, will be Long Beach, Santa Ana, San Diego, San Bernardino and either Ventura or Fresno.

Depend on Sales

"It is a tough job to start any league," said Frank Kerwin yesterday. "Nowadays there is such a demand for good ball players that the minor league magnates look to the sale of their players rather than to the gate receipts for their profits at the end of the year. One good prospect will bring $10,000, and if the club can pay running expenses, and develop one player a year that could get a tryout with a Class AA team or the majors, the club will be a paying proposition.

"We have had good support in Glendale as far as attendance goes. We have been rather unfortunate in the number of games won, but the fans have turned out just the same.

To Develop Players

"The team that will represent Glendale will be essentially the one that beat Lankershim last Sunday. Lewis, the catcher, of course, will go to Seattle, and Blenkiron will leave us. I expect to get Chet Thomas to do the catching, in order to develop the young pitchers which we will have to carry. Sawyer will not be able to play with us, as he belongs to Wichita of the Western league, although he does not intend to play there this year."

He is very enthusiastic over the prospects of the new league, and believes that with the anticipated favorable answers from the Coast league owners, the biggest obstacle has been removed. It is known that Eddie Maier of the Vernon club is heartily in favor of the project. With the backing of the Coast League the Class C organization is assured of a good start.

DENY ATHLETICS CUT INTO STUDY

Graduate Director of Games at Yale Refutes Theory By Quoting Figures

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 26.—What is the effect or athletics on scholarship? Not so bad at Yale, according to John T. Blossom, graduate director of athletics, in a statement to Yale Alumni Weekly. He found after due investigation that athletics had in no wise affected the marks of 143 men who took part in football, baseball, crew, track, hockey and swimming. The yearly average of these men was 74.

"These figures, and others in process of compilation," said Blossom, "I believe will show that the marks of the men participating in intercollegiate athletics do not suffer during the playing season. In only one sport was there a falling off of marks during the playing season, and then of only one point in the general average; while on the other hand the average stand of those engaged in competitive sports is better during the playing season as well as the rest of the year, than the average stand of undergraduate bodies as a whole."

Yale Spirit Wins

Freshmen athletes led Blossom to say, however, that "our belief is that they will pull their classroom batting average from mediocrity up into the select .300 class where it belongs. The 1923 football team has made a splendid record upon the gridiron, an average record in the class room.

"This is not particularly to the credit of this group. Yale feels that her athletes have been in the past and should continue to be above the average in all things—in loyalty to Yale, willingness to serve, and in ability to excel both on the playing field and in the class room."

Blossom was led to this comment by the fact that "the athletic record this year is the best ever attained by Yale athletes during a single year."

WHERE DO HORSES GET THE NAMES?

Ponies' Performances Have Nothing to Do with What They're Called

By COPELAND C. BURG
For International News Service

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 26.—Where do race horses get their names?

Owners, trainers and jockeys pick most of them, so they say.

And the weird combinations, resulting in such appellations as Broom Peddler, Pink Tenney, Sleigh Bells, Young Adam and Kingsclere are generally the result of combining names of the runners more or less famous ancestors.

One of the fascinating angles of the "sport of kings" is the legend and lore bubbling up in the names of the horses and many a bet is made daily, generally by the unsophisticated or the superstitious because of the colorful or euphonious name which stands out on the racing program.

Pretty Words

"There may be gold in the frozen sands," one reads in the tipster's chatter and the same informant tells the railbirds that Twelve Bells surely has been dangling in sweetest tunes of late and is now ready to dingdong down the home stretch in a great moment of surging harmony that would do justice to the master musician.

At the same times the dopester finds the "life of Lady Leonid is an open book," while Slippery Smile is waiting for a long row of grinning backers to cash in.

Mint Julep, Jolly Sailor, Sleiveconard, Not Enough, Too Much, Rose Mint, Clock Stocking, Top o' The Morning, Honest George and Catherine Marrons are a few of the strange titles horses are carrying down at Tia Juana these days. At the same track, there are runners under the high-sounding names of Plantagenet, Knighthood, Lady Winfrey, Supervisor, Publicity and Voogeria.

Signs of Times

The signs of the times are always found in the runners at any track. There's Taxation, Buster Keaton, Pavlowa, Barney Google and Interior Secretary and one finds too War Winner, War Penny and War Lace.

Runclar, Runster and just plain Run are carrying the colors of one stable at Tia Juana.

And there's Winner Take All, Firm Friend, Best Luck, Trusty and Great Luck. Who wouldn't risk a few dimes on such names?

But who is there who wants to lay a bet on Collision, Little Black Sheep or Doubtful?

STARS DESERTING CENTRE COLLEGE

As Moran Departs So Do Athletes Who Follow Colonels' Coach

ATLANTA, Feb. 26.—Withdrawal of three Centre College backfield players, soon after the resignation of Charley Moran as coach, has started tongues to wagging again in the South. Folks here are wondering if the Centre splash upon the football sea will now prove nothing more than a bubble, or if the gallant Colonels will be able to continue their brilliant playing.

While college officials have denied the players left school because of Moran's resignation and also deny that any more players will leave, there is considerable gossip that Covington, Lemon and some of the others will follow in the wake of the first three. With the naming of a new coach soon, however, things should settle down once more in Danville.

Announcement by Georgia Tech athletic authorities that a new all-year coach would be added to the present staff of five men has been received with wide acclaim in Aalanta, where the Tornado is tied up between playing spells. The slight slump of the famous Southern eleven this last fall was attributed to lack of coaches to handle the green players who formed the eleven.

Joe Guyon, famous halfback of the 1917 unbeaten team which was generally acclaimed national champions, is the man everyone thinks will be selected by W. A. Alexander to be the new assistant coach. Guyon coached Union College last fall and gave that institution its best team.

The influx of Eastern and mid-Western collegiate nines into the South will begin soon, and Southern colleges are busily preparing their diamonds for these engagements.

Yale, Dartmouth, Notre Dame, Ohio State and a few others are coming South this year for spring training.

Collegiate, interscholastic, and club relay teams throughout the South are busy preparing for the annual Southern Relay Games held on Grant Field, Atlanta, April 25-26. The twenty and more colleges in the Southern conference, numerous S. I. A. A. teams, a strong representation from the Southeastern A. A. U. and leading prep and high schools of the South will send teams for the big two-day meet.

Siki Hurls Himself From Hotel Window

HAVANA, Fla., Feb. 26.—Authorities today were investigating the acting of Battling Siki, the Senegalese boxer, in throwing himself out of the second-story window of his hotel here. He was uninjured. Siki had been ill with a fever and cold for several days and had been confined to his room. When Siki landed he quickly picked himself up and ran down the street shouting that he was "Siki, the great battler."

A crowd of young Cubans placated him and he was taken to his room and given medical treatment.

He wrote Mrs. Jackman on February 10 that he had not been successful in his quest but would continue it. Since then no word has come from him and she has appealed to the police throughout Iowa to aid her in the search. She fears Jackman may have met with foul play, as he was known to have carried a fairly large sum of money with him.

Heart and Home — Health and Happiness

Diet and Health

By Lulu Hunt Peters, M.D.

Author of "Diet and Health, with Key to the Calories"

SPIRITUALITY VS MATERIALITY

THE UNDERNOURISHED CHILD—No. II

In yesterday's article I gave you a program for the undernourished child and an outline of the best foundation diet for any child. Because of its great importance I will repeat this foundation diet. If you missed yesterday's newspaper please get it, for the program I outlined is also of great importance.

Best Food Foundation Each Day For Each Child

(Also best for each adult)

Part I, Protective Foods: 1½ pints milk, at least; 1 full cupful of vegetables (especially the green-leaf vegetables), part of them raw; 1 cupful of fruit, part fresh if possible.

Part II, Energy Foods: Cereals, including whole-grain breads; fats in the form of butter, cream, egg yolks and nuts.

You will give your child other foods besides these I have listed, but if he has Part I as the minimum basis for every day we can be pretty sure the protein and mineral elements and the vitamins will largely be taken care of; and if the energy foods (Part II) are properly chosen we can be sure that there will be a preponderance of alkanizing foods in the diet.

The amount of the energy foods of the basic diet will depend upon the child's age, activity, etc. Remember that he is going to need a lot of good energy foods. However, a large share should come from the ones I have listed. If he has those in sufficient amounts as a basis they will help supply vitamins and minerals and proteins as well as furnish energy.

If you see that he gets the proportionate part of the protective foods for each meal he will automatically stoke up his little tummy with sufficient energy foods, if he is normal. If he is undernourished or overnourished you may have to do a little "seeing" about his energy foods also.

The undernourished child may have to have two and perhaps three times the amount of food that the normal child needs. Analyze his diet and see if he is getting sufficient of the protective foods. If not, increase these as well as his energy foods. However, you must do this gradually. Do not try to do it all at once. The number of egg yolks—the golden food—can be increased to two or three a day. They can be beaten in the cream sauces for the vegetables, or taken in eggnog, custards, etc. Egg yolks are rich in the vitamins, phosphorus, iron and fat, and they seldom disagree.

Cod-liver oil acts wonderfully in some cases.

If he is an excess candy and ice cream and rich pastry eater, these instead of being increased must be decreased—and never allowed between meals. Give him more milk, unless, as I have told you before, he is taking so much milk that he does not have sufficient appetite for solid foods. Remember he should have at least three glasses a day, so get that amount in him in some form. Cook his cereal in milk if necessary.

Give a mid-morning or mid-afternoon lunch—of milk preferably—so that he won't have to over-distend his stomach at meal time. Unless you find that he will eat better and more during the day by limiting him to three meals a day.

Prohibit tea and coffee. No growing child should have them. Prohibit candy and pastry eating between meals. See that he has plenty of rest and sleep and happy home surroundings. Carry out this program, and your malnourished child will be out of the shadow of death. (This sounds very strong, mothers, but it is true. For malnutrition undermines the resistance to many diseases, especially tuberculosis.)

My Dear Followers:—When sending for material which we offer you, please remember to enclose a stamped envelope bearing your full name and address. The pamphlet on reducing and gaining is the only one for which you must enclose four cents in stamps extra. Address your letters to me in care of this paper. Make them as brief as possible, not over 200 words, and type or write them legibly with ink. Please sign your name as evidence of good faith—we will not use it in any way. Remember it is impossible for me to diagnose for you or to answer you personally. I appreciate very much the beautiful letters you send me and regret it is impossible to give you individual advice. The questions you ask will be answered in the column as soon as possible, if they are of general interest. Don't forget the s. a. s. e. if you expect me to send you the information I have offered.

QUIET LIFE PROVES TIRESOME

Wife of Bay City Pastor Seeks Freedom

Mrs. Helen West

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 18.—Mrs. Helen West's trouble was not that of most pastor's wives—inadequate finances. It was the repressed life forced upon a minister's helpmate that made matrimony unbearable to her.

She could stand it no longer and left her husband, the Rev. James S. West, pastor of the First Baptist church, and one of San Francisco's best known churchmen. And Dr. West, while not an advocate of divorce, is going to give her the freedom she desires so much.

She is 34 and he is 48. They have a 14-year-old daughter.

"I got tired of sneaking out to dances," she said. She wants to sing on the concert stage and is going to devote herself to that hope.

Despite their separation, Mrs. husband in great respect. She does not want to interfere with his career—nor her own.

BEAUTY CHATS

by EDNA KENT FORBES

ANSWERED LETTERS

E. T. M.—The condition you describe sometimes comes from too much acid in the system. It can often be helped by rubbing olive oil or cold cream into the nails every night.

John F.—Continue with the astringent and cream treatments and massage a little of the cream into the lines every day. Follow up either with an ice rub or very cold compresses. Such lines are not serious enough for you to worry about as yet. If your mouth is inclined to droop at the corners force yourself to smile. This is one of the best things for preventing the wrinkles you complain of.

Eleanore G.—I would not advise you to massage the face with cocoa butter to make it stouter. While cocoa butter is nourishing to the skin, it is too heavy for the sensitive complexion of the face. If your face is too thin, you are probably too thin all over and need building up.

Mary Ellen.—If your hair splits on the ends have it singed or clipped every six weeks, or every other time you shampoo. The hot, crude oil will be very helpful.

Mrs. W. T. C.—A round, chubby face need not necessarily be homely; in fact, if it has a pleasant smile on it, it is apt to be very attractive.

Polly F.—You weigh about 15 pounds too much. I am sure that if you went on a light diet for awhile, cutting out rich and sweet foods, your figure would improve and the pimply condition of the back would clear up.

Miss Seventeen—It is not necessary for either boy or girl to take the other's arm when they are walking. This is an outgrown custom which is rarely seen any more.

Mary S. N.—If you use a good hair tonic on your head and comb your hair simply, it will grow in again as healthy and thick as it used to be.

Low shoes are much prettier for dancing that high ones.

Reader—Dark eyebrows are very attractive on a girl with light hair. Arrange your heavy, long hair in a coronet braid. For a very dry skin, it is well to use a cleansing cream on the face before washing it. If the skin feels drawn afterward massage a very little bit of good cream into the skin, merely enough to relieve the unpleasant sensation, and to supply to the skin enough oil for the time being.

James R.—You need a hair tonic and you should massage the scalp every day. If you want, I will mail you a formula for one, on receipt of a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Tomorrow—Caring for the Eyes

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes, in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So, if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question.—The Editor.

With the Women of Today

By MRS. LILIAN CAMPBELL

Mlle. Dreyfus-See, a young French doctor of 28, recently won the first prize for three years' hospital practice at the Ecole de Medicine, Paris. This is the first time in the history of the institution that a woman has won the prize.

Mlle. Dreyfus-See had many male competitors, but carried off the honors by a large margin.

Feminist circles in Paris consider her success a brilliant one and a triumph for the suffrage movement.

COMDT. ALLEN

Commandant Allen, head of the women's auxiliary police force of London, England, is coming to America soon to study police routine and methods. She is the first uniformed policewoman in England.

Instead of bewailing the difficulty of getting housemaids, American women should rejoice in the freeing of the servant class, a relic of medievalism, Mrs. Alfred C. Taylor, president of the Chicago Women's Club, told Chicago club women attending the fifth annual conference on household management at Chicago recently.

The last class of women to be freed is the servant class, Mrs. Taylor pointed out. As the drudgery of household labor has been decreased by industry and invention, women have enlarged their horizons and taken on broader responsibilities, but the stigma attached to the occupation of housework has remained until the present.

"The existence of a servant class without definite rights to their own time nor respect for their trade was a last survival of feudalism," she explained. "While we may regret the disappearance of our maids as a class, we can be glad that the servile spirit is disappearing from our society, for women are at last coming to respect the profession of housekeeping. In this new respect for housework, we see the passing of another frontier."

Mme. Marinie, wife of a famous Paris financier, claims to have the smallest feet of any woman in France. They are hardly six inches in length and are easily cased in 1½ size shoes.

Women have assumed the prodigious task of "getting out the vote" for the presidential elections in November.

Their goal is:

"Forty million votes in 1924."

That is the mark set by the National League of Women Voters

Mlle. Dreyfus-See

as the number of ballots necessary to record public sentiment in the coming elections. As the total vote in 1920 was 26,705,236, a 50 per cent larger vote is sought in November.

"Loyal American citizens," they declare, "whatever their political faith may be, should join in an effort to get out the vote, in order that the decisions shall be made not by a minority of the electorate, but by the majority."

"A WORLD BEATER"

"FOLEY'S Cough Medicine is a 'World Beater' for speedy relief," writes Hilton A. Lyre, 206 Evans Avenue, Evansville, Ind. "Last month I was down with a severe cold, and getting worse. I bought a bottle of FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR COMPOUND, and the next night was well and O. K." If you want a quick, reliable remedy for coughs, colds and hoarseness insist upon FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR COMPOUND. It has all the curative qualities of pine tar and honey. Swtet Butter Icing and Filling for Cake—Beat two ounces of sweet butter with a fork till creamy, then add to it one egg-white and beat with an egg beater till fluffy. Add one teaspoon of vanilla and one-half teaspoon of almond extract (or substitute rose extract for the almond); also add one pound of confectioners' sugar and whip all together thoroughly. If too thick a tablespoon of boiling water may be added. This is a delicious sweet butter filling and icing."

Mrs. S.—"Some reader might like to know that if a bottle of ink is tipped over on a carpet or piece of tapestry it can be removed as follows; soak up as much of it as possible with a piece of blotting paper and then just drop a raw egg on the spot and work it in with the fingertips in a rotary movement. Wash out with tepid clear water."

Answer—I am sure that many women will find this hint useful.

Mother-Housekeeper—"I take my children to school every day in my automobile and I thought that other women drivers might like to know that I have had no trouble keeping its upholstery clean since discovering that a weekly cleansing with gasoline will remove the marks of dirty little hands and small muddy feet. Every Saturday I open the car windows and go over the seat cushions and back pads with the gasoline rubbed on a clean cloth. Then I take out the floor carpet and go over that with a whisk broom dipped in gasoline."

Answer—Thank you, Reader Friend, for this suggestion.

Arrange in a dish, pour over them French Dressing. Let stand for 30 minutes, then drain. Now prepare one cup of browned, shredded almonds and stick these bristle-like pieces of nut into the pears to represent quills. Serve on crisp lettuce."

Heart and Home Problems

By MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

A TROUBLESOME CHOICE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a woman 27 years old and have been keeping company with a man 33 years old for about a year. I have known him all my life. He is a church member and well thought of in the neighborhood, is starting out for himself on a farm and wants me to marry him.

About six months ago I went visiting to another city and met a man about 50 years of age who is worth about fifty thousand dollars. He seems like a very nice man, but does not belong to a church nor does he like to go with me. I am a church member and love to go to church.

Do you think I would be happy if I married the older man? He says he is never going to get old. He doesn't look nor act old now. My parents want me to marry him so that I won't have to work hard like they did.

I like both of these men and can't decide which one I like better. The older man knows I am keeping company with the younger man, but the younger man doesn't know about the older one. Should I tell him? I am afreid he will get angry and think I am after his money. Do you think I am?

Some tell me not to marry a man who isn't a Christian. What do you think? UNDECIDED.

It is difficult to advise you regarding your choice of a husband, because you and you alone can decide which of the two men is dearer to your heart. To marry for money would be most unwise, but to marry for love when the man has money would be quite delightful. If, however, you really care for the younger man, you could never be happy if you gave him up in order to better your own circumstances. Money is an uncertain quantity in marriage, while real love and congeniality can be depended upon to bring happiness. In my opinion there are many very good people who do not attend church, and unfortunately many hypocrites have been to blame for turning many people away from churches.

RELIGION OBJECTION

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl 21 years of age and in love with a fellow two years my senior. I know he loves me because he tells me he does and always talks of marriage, but there is one thing that keeps me in doubt and that is his religion. My mother is very opposed to our marriage. I feel that she should not try to separate us. Please give me your advice.

LITTLE SUE.

A difference in religion makes the question of marriage very grave. Your love for each other would have to be so great that you would refrain from arguing on the question of religion; one would have to give in to the other in the matter of religious education of the children; and the opposition of the "in-laws" would have to be considered. I can only advise you to think the matter over very carefully before you make your decision. There are cases where a man and wife of different religion are happy together, but on the other hand there are many cases where they are utterly miserable. You and you alone, can decide the matter.

TRY SULPHUR ON AN ECZEMA SKIN

Costs Little and Overcomes Trouble Almost Over Night

Any breaking out of the skin, even fiery, itching eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying Mentho-Sulphur, declares a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, this sulphur preparation instantly brings ease from skin irritation, soothes and heals the eczema right up and leaves the skin clear and smooth.

It seldom fails to relieve the torment without delay. Sufferers from skin trouble should obtain a small jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like cold cream.—Advertisement.

Defies Age by Using Ordinary Buttermilk Beautify Complexion

This Pretty Girl Tells Druggists Not to Take Anyone's Money Unless This Delightful New Vanishing Cream Shows a Decided Improvement.

Buttermilk Cream creates beauty almost like magic. The most wonderful thing about it is the fact that whilst it turns the dullest, most lifeless complexion to radiant beauty and makes red or rough hands or arms snowy white, yet there is not the slightest sign of its use after application. It actually vanishes from sight and the most heated atmosphere will not produce the least shininess or greasiness of the skin.

No matter whether you are troubled with a poor complexion, wrinkles, puffiness around the eyes, freckles, crows' feet or lines around the mouth, ugly finger nails, or just a simple roughness of the face, hands or arms caused by wind or sun, you will find that any or all of these troubles will quickly disappear with the use of Howard's Buttermilk Cream.—Advertisement.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—Someone should pen a saga or, at the very least, an epic poem to the lamp posts of Washington.

They are every bit as deserving of a modicum of fame as the nightly white fire of New York's Broadway or the hidden electric lamps in Chicago that make its white buildings after dusk resemble great blazing piles of loaf sugar.

The street lights of the national capital are as varied and as interesting as the big and little, bright and dull buttons that most grandmothers collect in tin boxes, along with odds and ends of ribbon, skeins of yarn, pressed flowers and daugerrotypes.

To a visitor any city's street lighting arrangement must look like an experiment to determine which type of lamp post will serve best.

For example: The famed Pennsylvania avenue at night is illuminated by very modern lights. They have large, beautiful globes set atop posts, sparkling like so many king's sceptres. No one could complain about them, although he might chuckle politely in his sleeve at the old lamp posts sandwiched in between.

These old-timers of the capital's lighting system appear to hark back to Civil War days. Their skinny posts are bent and they lean, as if they had tired of having Abolitionists and Secessionists hang each other to the cross-arms away back in the sixties. The lamp part of the beacons is a study in plane geometry. Instead of being round or globular, it is four-sided. Each side started out to be isosceles triangles, base to base, but changed its mind and became two back to back trapezoids. One really has to go to night school and study advanced plane and solid geometry to appreciate this.

Inside these oldest lamps there beams no modern gas mantle. Instead, a jet squirts out a sallow, trembling flame that seems ashamed of its senility beside the glaring white of the modern lights across the street.

Some of the dressy lamp posts have sheets of colored glass worked into their scheme of things. All have crazy, jumbled lettering upon them to designate the streets.

Although they seem to have no place in this modern capital there is something fine about these old gas-jet lamps. They are of a day when pride and dignity burned steadily and less flamboyantly than those of 1924, typified by the new, sputtering blazing arcs inside their ornate globes.

In the more obscure side streets the same experiment with street lighting is going on. Some of the lamp posts are electric effects. Some have large globes, others small. There are more than just a few oil-burning affairs here and there, and different styles of gas mantle and gas-jet lights, too.

On the whole, however, the lights of Washington are much more restful than the nervous, dancing flashes of Broadway, or that steady, burning glare like a Mojave sun in Chicago.

DOCTORS DISCUSS AMAZING CURE

Hearing, Vision Restored To Wonder Girl

The eyes and nose of Willetta Huggins (above). Below (right) she is shown "listening" to a voice over a telephone through her fingers and (left) detecting the color of clothing by smelling it.

JANESVILLE, Wis., Feb. 19.—Was Willetta Huggins, "wonder blind and deaf girl" ever totally blind and deaf?

This is the question that is occupying medical authorities following an examination which revealed that Willetta now has 50 per cent normal vision and hearing was complete in one ear and 50 per cent in the other.

Meanwhile Willetta herself and her friends say she was cured by a faith healer.

For a long time the girl astonished the medical world by her ability to tell colors by her sense of smell and to feel pieces of currency and announce their denominations. She was also able to distinguish voices through placing her hands on a person's larynx.

"I shall tell the truth, I can both see and hear. I have been cured," Willetta told J. T. Hooper, superintendent of the state school for the blind. He called three members of the Chicago Medical Society to Janesville.

Dr. T. J. Williams of Chicago, who wrote an article for the Journal of the American Medical Society following an investigation that took place before the Chicago Medical Society a year ago, was the examiner. He was assisted by Dr. J. E. L. Keyes and Dr. J. B. Simmons of Chicago.

Dr. Williams said there was no doubt in his mind the girl was blind when he made the first examination.

Superintendent Hooper attributes some of the cure to the betterment of her physical condition.

Willetta first expressed the belief that she could see and hear last fall but little credence to this was given by Superintendent Hooper when not supported by tests which he made. She recently spent two weeks at Chippewa Falls, where her dead parents formerly lived, and where she was living with her grandmother when found in 1915 by a field agent for the blind. When she returned to Janesville to resume her studies she told her schoolmates that she had regained the use of her eyes and ears.

Aroused Skepticism

Because Willetta's demonstration aroused at the outset the skepticism of everyone who heard of it and saw her, she has been subjected to the most rigid tests and constant scrutiny when she was giving a demonstration. Many saw and became convinced.

Prof. Carl Jastrow of the University of Wisconsin caused much discussion of the girl's case when after a partial examination he declared she had no such powers as were attributed to her. In May, 1922, she gave a demonstration before the Chicago Medical society and came through tests made there with almost complete accuracy.

The girl was deluged with mail from all parts of the country, had offers to go on the stage, in motion pictures, and many other things but her guardian, Mr. Hooper, refused to allow her powers to be exploited. She made a large number of appearances in demonstrations but has not given any for several months. Last June she suffered a nervous breakdown and for a time could not "smell color" or "hear through her sense of touch."

Uncle Wiggily Bedtime Stories

— By Howard R. Garis —

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE RUBBER PLANT

Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy had a fine, tall rubber plant growing in the hollow stump bungalow. Uncle Wiggily's muskrat lady housekeeper was very proud of this rubber plant and she gave it water to drink every day. She let the sun shine on it, and the rubber plant was very happy—that is, as happy as ever rubber plants are.

One day Uncle Wiggily said to Nurse Jane:

"Why don't you go away for a few days of rest? You have been working very hard this winter—baking pancakes for me and making strawberry long cakes from stewed carrots—it is time you had a vacation."

"Yes," spoke Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy, "I would like to go away for a little vacation, but I don't dare."

"Why not?" asked Uncle Wiggily in surprise.

"On account of my rubber plant," the muskrat lady answered. "It needs to be watered every day, and if I go away I couldn't do it."

"Oh, but I could!" eagerly said the rabbit. "I'll water the rubber plant for you."

"Ha! Ha!" laughed Nurse Jane. "Why are you laughing?" the bunny asked, and his pink nose stopped twinkling.

"You are so funny!" chuckled the muskrat lady.

"Funny? What do you mean?"

"I guess you have forgotten about the last time I went away," explained Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy. "You said you would remember and water my geranium. But when I came back it was dead and dried up and looked like an egg beater that hadn't been washed in a month."

"Oh—well—yes, I did forget about the geranium," admitted Uncle Wiggily. "But a rubber plant is different. It's much larger and I can see it plainly every day. The geranium was so small I forgot about it. Do go away, Nurse Jane, and I promise you I'll water the rubber plant morning, noon and night."

"Once a day will be enough—if you don't forget," said the muskrat lady. And after Uncle Wiggily had faithfully promised not to forget, Nurse Jane packed her valise and went away on a little trip to see her mother.

The rabbit gentleman kept his promise—at least, for the first few days. Every morning, before he started out to look for an adventure, he would pour some water on the rubber plant. And each night, when he came back to the bungalow, it wasn't so lonesome without Nurse Jane, because the rubber plant was there to greet him.

Uncle Wiggily and the rubber plant became very good friends, even though the plant did not talk much. But one morning Uncle Wiggily was in a hurry to go off adventuring and he forgot to water the plant. He forgot it that night, too, and the next morning.

But the next night, when the plant still had had no water, and when Uncle Wiggily was sitting near it in the easy chair, wondering when Nurse Jane would be coming back—why, all of a sudden, something happened.

That tall, stretchy rubber plant just leaned over, like a palm tree bowing in the wind, and it tapped Uncle Wiggily on his head.

"Bless my pink nose!" cried the rabbit gentleman. "What was that? My goodness!" He looked up in time to see the rubber plant straightening up, and then the bunny knew what had happened.

"Oh, you poor thing—you haven't had a drink in nearly three days!" cried Mr. Longears. "My fault, too! I'll give you plenty now!"

So he poured a whole pail of water on the rubber plant, which drank eagerly and was thankful. The rubber plant was glad Uncle Wiggily was so kind and it wanted to do something in the way of a favor for the rabbit. And a little later it had the chance.

While Uncle Wiggily was still sitting in his easy chair, thinking about next Christmas and things like that, all of a sudden the Bushy Bear broke in through a window.

"I've come to nibble your ears!" howled the Bear.

"Oh, dear! Please don't!" begged the bunny.

But the Bear was cross and ugly. He reached out a claw to catch hold of Uncle Wiggily, when, all of a sudden, the kind rubber plant stretched over and gave the bad chap a tap on the head.

"Ha! Who did that?" growled the Bear, for he saw no one, and, as he had his back to the rubber plant, he didn't notice it move.

"I didn't do it," said the bunny.

"I know you didn't growled the Bear. "Well, no matter! Now I'll nibble your ears!"

He was just going to, when the rubber plant stretched over again and tapped the bear very hard on his head.

"Oh, this is too much for me! There must be invisible fairies in here!" howled the Bear. "I'm not going to stay!"

"Nobody wants you to!" laughed the rabbit, as the Bear leaped out

"Ha! Ha!" laughed Nurse Jane

of the window. But before he left the rubber plant stretched farthern than before and tapped him again. My, how frightened that Bear was! But it served him right, didn't it?

"Thank you, rubber plant," said the rabbit. And when Nurse Jane came home she said she never saw her rubber plant looking better.

"I took good care of it, and it took good care of me," said the rabbit. And if the egg beater doesn't tickle the umbrella in the ribs and make it laugh when it's raining, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the Jumping Jack.

The defeat of the bond issue at Friday's school election should not in the least discourage the patrons of Glendale schools. There were 1141 votes cast. On account of the requirement of a two-thirds vote to carry, the proposition was lost.

SAGE TEA DANDY TO DARKEN HAIR

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Lustre to Hair

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost over night if you'll get a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old famous Sage Tea recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, are sold annually, say well-known druggists here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray or becoming faded have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications, the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound tonight, and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.—Advertisement.

Our Defense at Panama

Inadequate in Guns, Personnel and Other Essential Elements, Say Naval Authorities

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN

EDITOR'S NOTE—Herewith is the second of a series of six articles on the military and naval situation at the Panama Canal, written expressly for International News Service.

COLON, Panama, Feb. 26.—Are the defensive naval elements assigned to defending the Panama Canal strong enough?

High military and naval experts say "No!"

The Panama Canal naval district force consists of three light cruisers, second class; one light cruiser, second class; one gunboat and several submarine chasers.

The great peacetime joint army and navy maneuvers at the Canal, just concluded, brought out, military and naval students agree, that the naval elements assigned to defense of the canal are defective in their capacity to patrol the shore of the Caribbean successfully enough to prevent surprise landings along the coast.

Landing of an overseas expeditionary force on the coast, in wartime, would be a direct menace to the Canal and, in fact, it is pretty generally agreed by those who have studied the situation that this landing force could proceed inland, blow up the locks and quite possibly put the canal out of business long enough to prevent out Atlantic fleet from forming a juncture with the Pacific fleet, or vice versa, as the war situation might dictate.

The fighting marines proved during the maneuvers that a landing could be made. Under the cover of a smoke screen 400 marines in fifty-foot boats negotiated the choppy sea and approached Fort Randolph, which is a short distance from Colon, on the Atlantic side of the canal. They were fired upon by the garrison, but despite their theoretical losses, kept on. Meantime 500 marines in boats maneuvered a distance to the south and landed. Three hundred more marines landed at the nearby naval base of Coco Solo, despite the opposition of aviators.

About half the party became violently seasick. They made the trip from a land base their fleet (the Black enemy fleet) had established at Porto Bello, having been on the water eight hours. They were disembarked from ships in the night in 1½ hours. They cruised for seventeen miles.

This remarkable feat is pointed to by army and navy authorities as one of the strongest reasons why the permanent Panama Canal navy district force should be increased to a point where there would be the most practical assurance to the American people that an enemy in the event of war would recognize an attempt to make a landing not only hazardous but impossible.

WHO'S WHO

LEON TROTZKY

Leon Trotzky, right hand man of Nicolai Lenin, dead "father" of the Russian Soviet government, now looms as a pathetic figure in that country. Trotzky has ranked as one of the strong men of the Red regime there ever since the overthrow of Czarism. As minister of war in Lenin's official family he played an important part in the building up of the government—especially the military end of it. Now, as the death of Lenin calls for a new "Man of the Hour," Trotzky lies ill—too ill to take over the reins, should they be tendered him.

LEON TROTZKY

Trotzky, son of a Jewish farmer of the Ukraine, is 44 years of age. At 9 he went to Odessa and studied at St. Paul's high school, where, says he: "I displayed great diligence in my studies and always was first in my class." He does not appear to have sponsored Marxism for any personal grievance and was, according to himself, slow to embrace it at all. It is true that beginning with Jan. 18, 1898, he served various terms of imprisonment amounting in all to ten years. "It was in prison that I finally became converted to the theory of Marx."

He was a Social Democrat. After the Brussels Conference of 1903, when the Socialist Convention split to become known as Bolshevik and Menshevik parties, he joined the Mensheviki. "As soon as Menshevism began to assume the character of a tactical movement . . . I broke with the Mensheviki and remained outside both factions," he related.

After Bloody Sunday, Jan. 9, 1905, he seems to have become an ardent Bolshevik and to have worked hard for the revolution. At the outbreak of the war he fled to Germany and was imprisoned by the kaiser for writing a seditious pamphlet. He subsequently escaped to France, was expelled and fled to Spain, was again expelled and in January, 1917, he went to the U. S. and lived for several months in Manhattan. Later in the same year he returned to Russia and took a prominent part in the Bolshevik revolution.

SIDNEY WEBB

The selection of a man to fill the post of president of board of trade in his cabinet was not a difficult task for England's new Premier, Ramsay MacDonald, Sidney Webb, the man chosen, stood out as the logical man. Webb is a writer and authority on economic subjects. He has written several comprehensive works on economics and sciology, his wife collaborating with him in these. He was the principal founder of the London school of economics.

SIDNEY WEBB

This isn't his first public service by any means. He has acted on several royal commissions and committees and has represented the Seaham division for the laborites since November, 1922.

He has served on the London county council and the senate of London university.

He was born in London, July 13, 1859, and was educated in private schools and continental colleges. His first position was as clerk in a London office.

BURBANK

PUBLIC LIBRARY BEING FURTHERED

Present Institution Is Not Keeping Pace With City, Committee Reports

The movement for a public library has gained momentum, following a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce advisory board and the Auxiliary advisory board, held at the Women's club. Miss Emily Brown, representing the B. and P. Women's club, intimated that the present library was entirely inadequate and the list of books deficient in vital respects.

Speaking on the same subject, Mrs. Margaret Yale, as a representative of the Women's club, declared that many of the classics loved by children were entirely absent, among them such books as "Huckleberry Finn" and "Tom Sawyer."

As a result of the meeting, President Colburn of the C. of C. told Mrs. Yale that if she would provide him with the necessary legal procedure, he would circulate petitions for presentation to the city trustees, calling for a bond election to provide a suitable library.

Kiwanians Favor Charter

The public affairs committee of the Burbank Kiwanis club favors the city charter form of government and wishes to have immediate steps taken to bring about such a system. The committee comprises Russell Mullin, E. J. Jackson, C. W. Anderson, W. A. Keen and Charles B. Wood.

The committee has tendered to the club the following report:

"The committee is in favor of taking immediate steps toward obtaining a PROPER charter for the city of Burbank. In taking this attitude we believe that the time is coming when our present form of city administration will have to be changed due to the fast growth in population. There is no argument as to whether or not a city charter would be a better form of government than our present form.

"It might be an improvement or it might prove otherwise. It depends entirely on the charter adopted. The real work of the Kiwanis club will be to see that the board of freeholders elected are well qualified to draw up a charter that will fit our needs."

Legionnaires Dine

Frank Marolda, ex-band sergeant of the 343rd Infantry, who has for several years been touring the country in the interest of various clubs and gatherings, put on what was hailed as a fine show at the local Legionnaires' banquet held last Friday night at the Goodfellows' club.

Marolda's first number was an Indian song depicting early days in America. His second number was a piano monologue. His third was an interpretation of three people trying to sing at once and his concluding number was another piano selection, imitating this time a full band. He was hailed as one of the best entertainers who has ever appeared in Burbank.

EAGLE ROCK

MANY YOUNG FOLK IN SPRING PLAY

Outdoor Pageant Will Be Given in April Under Auspices P.-T. A.

Smitten with spring, the Eagle Rock Parent-Teacher Association has made application to the board of education for permission to present on April 25 and 26 an outdoor pageant. Hundreds of children will participate in the fantastic affair, which will be created and directed by Mrs. Anne Harrison and will greet the world under the captivating title, "Idylls of Spring."

Mrs. Harrison will be assisted by an able corps in presenting this pageant, should the board of education give their consent, which is thought certain. Mrs. C. D. Wentworth will design the costumes and Miss Georgia C. Shane will be in charge of publicity, it is announced.

"Idylls of Spring" will precede the Hans Andersen Festival at Elysian park, scheduled for May 3, and which will be produced by all the Los Angeles schools, directed by Miss Ellen Galpin of Eagle Rock. Parts of the local pageant will be reproduced for this event, Miss Shane states.

To Observe Founders' Day

Mrs. A. G. Reily, president of the Women's Twentieth Century Club, will deliver an address on "Our Founders" at the clubhouse the night of February 28. There will also be an art exhibit, it is announced, the latter in charge of Miss H. F. Bailey, Mrs. Hanson Puthuff and Miss Gertrude Kennedy. It will be an open meeting and a general invitation is extended the public to be present.

Mrs. Nell Booker Mayhew of Los Angeles will speak on "The Missions," presenting what is said to be a most unique and absorbing angle to this old theme. There will be musical numbers and Slavio L. Palizo will give an exhibition of Spanish dancing.

Refreshments will be served and arrangements have been made to accommodate several hundred local people. Artists in any line of work are asked to be the special guests of the committee in charge of the art exhibit.

Pupils In Recital

A charming recital was given last Thursday night at the United theatre by the pupils of Miss Evelyn Dawn Thomas, teacher of interpretive dancing. Bernice Strevig was delightful in her interpretation of "An Indian Dance," and Francis Gilmore in "Chinois," Louise Cutts in "French Dance" and Ruth Willey in "Eccentric Dance" were also very good. Miss Thomas, the teacher of these clever children, studied for some time with Ernest Belcher and other noted teachers.

TUJUNGA

C. C. DROPS OUT OF MERGER PLAN

Refuses to Participate In Inter-City Controversy On Incorporation

Participation in the incorporation controversy, now agitating the citizens of Tujunga and Sunland, has been definitely abandoned by the Tujunga Chamber of Commerce. The well-known tendency of the public to place the blame on the handiest goat in the event of being displeased has made the Chamber members exceedingly timid about even appointing committees to gather and dispense information on the subject, even in a neutral manner. Voters will get no advice from that source and if the affair does not end to please them will be forced to "ride" some other goat. Apparently the Chamber of Commerce has been ridden enough for unintentional and fancied mistakes.

Affairs of the recently authorized fire protection district will be handled by a committee of five men, one from each of the five districts or precincts into which the fire district will be divided. The Sunland Chamber of Commerce and the Valley Center Improvement league will co-operate in organizing this committee. A comparatively light vote was cast at the election on fire protection, only 227 ballots being cast from a registration of 1200 voters.

Return Donations

Contributions to the fire alarm siren fund are to be returned to the donors, that plan having been abandoned with the authorization of the fire district, which will be formed by the county.

In the event of incorporation the establishment, maintenance and administration of fire departments and kindred affairs would automatically come into the hands of the city. This point of home government as against county supervision is the one around which the campaign revolves.

Since the foundation of Verdugo City in the La Crescenta district two weeks ago much opposition has arisen to the name City of Verdugo Hills, which is proposed in the incorporation petition to the county officials as the name for the proposed city, which, if incorporated, will take in both Sunland and Tujunga. The objections are based on the argument that there are too many communities already bearing that name in some form.

Repairing Streets

The county road repairing crew is working on Tujunga streets, grading, oiling and otherwise conditioning them.

According to Judge H. H. Breidt $600 has been raised in the Tujunga district for relief work among children in Germany. Of this amount $100 was raised at a benefit performance at the Tujunga schoolhouse, in which several Mission Players participated through the courtesy of John Steven McGroarty, author of the play. The Community church raised $50 for the fund.

Record for Rainless Season in So. Calif.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 26.—Less rain has fallen from July 1, 1923, to Feb. 25, 1924, in Los Angeles than in any similar period since the establishment of the government weather bureau station here, Col. H. B. Hersey declares.

The fact that the precipitation during the 1922-23 rainy season was only two-thirds of normal, has also added to the seriousness of the situation, the weather expert stated.

There is still the possibility that before the end of March there will be enough rain to alleviate the situation to a considerable extent, Col. Hersey stated. He cites figures to show that during other years in which the early months of the rainy season in southern California were productive of little rain, the precipitation during the month of March totaled more than four inches.

Daniels Nearly Calls Sinclair Traitorous

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 26.—Josephus Daniels, former secretary of the navy, in an address here yesterday before the Women's Democratic Club declared he "had reports" that Harry F. Sinclair, lessor of Teapot Dome, had "tried to sell American oil to the German navy."

What It Means

"Wet-Mix" Poured Concrete Hollow Tile means just what it says.

A combination of cement, sand and gravel, mixed in correct proportions, according to the "wet-mix" system, will produce concrete which will have maximum strength and be waterproof. This concrete is rendered nonporous by the "wet-mix" process.

The air spaces and the density of the tile form a sound deadener, making walls constructed of this material soundproof.

The plant manufacturing this tile is located in this town. We invite inspection, and shall be pleased to have you call.
